Why We Blush
Too Much Production
Siberia's New Gold Field
Gasoline Prices

PROFESSOR MUELLER of the University of Chicago Sociology Department says bashfulness and blushes are matters of habit. We blush, he says, because we, or somebody else, does something opposed to "social responsibility." The idiot never blushes, because he doesn't know anything about social responsibility.

COLORED PEOPLE and Indians blush as much as white people, only you don't see the blushing quite so plainly. Animals don't blush and don't laugh.

If we were all compelled to go without any clothing, there would be no blushing about it at the end of the first week, says the professor. That first week, however, would be terrible, for all except the blind.

THE WORLD'S JOB for the present is catching up. So says Mr. Waldeck, a young Chicago banker, who knows what's what in finance and economics.

"In the war the world concentrated on production. Steel mills, woolen mills, plants for producing everything—shoes, clothing, hats, shirts—were multiplied intensively.

"Millions of men were rushed into the army, all had to have new clothes, shoes, hats, belts, overcoats, everything—all needed at once.

"New railroads were built; scores of millions of tons of steel went into cannon and projectiles; enough copper was shot away to supply the world. In every corner of the earth the order was: 'Produce the maximum, no matter what it costs.'

"Now we must adjust ourselves to consuming what we produce. Fortunately for this country, our high standard of living gives us the maximum of consumption."

THIS COUNTRY needs more population to consume what it produces. It can produce food enough. Clothing and everything else enough for a hundred million more people. Our immigration laws keep out new population and tie us down to a slow process of growth. If there are people we don't want, as we do not want Asiatics, keep them out.

But there could be no greater stupidity than keeping out millions of the best people of Europe, that would gladly come here, as all of us have in years past, and supply population to take care of our present capacity for production. Their coming would increase prosperity, national and individual, just as increasing population and immigration have always increased both.

A NEW GOLD field is discovered in Southeastern Siberia; twenty thousand gold hunters are on the way.

Bolshevism regulates gold mining as some American States regulate deer shooting. No miner can take out of the ground more than 9,000 rubles in gold. After that he must go home, and give somebody else a chance.

THAT MAY BE good Bolshevism, but it isn't good mining or good sense. The thing is to get out the gold, copper, zinc, lead or tin, and let the best man get the most.

HOWEVER, twenty thousand Russians going to Siberia to get gold, even with a 9,000 ruble limit, is a more pleasing sight than twenty thousand Russians sent to Siberia in the old days for objecting to autocratic rule.

SENATOR TRAMMEL, of Florida, a Democrat, of course, wants President Coolidge to investigate the gasoline situation and tell why gasoline prices have gone up recently.

The Senator might also ask the President to find out how much higher the prices of gasoline are going, for they are going higher.

AND EVEN MORE important would be a careful search by the government for more oil deposits. Wartime prices of

10 FIREMEN HURT IN 2 BATTLES; PROBE ORDERED IN LYNN

Ten firemen were injured and six horses burned to death today at fires in a Charlestown stable and a recently vacated Lynn lodging house.

The State fire marshal has been asked to investigate the fire in the Roosevelt Apartments at Nos. 60-66 Central avenue, Lynn, where presence of oil and other inflammable substance convinced local authorities the blaze was of incendiary origin. While fighting that fire, George Wolfendale, driver of Engine 3, was run down by Engine 1. He suffered a fractured leg and other injuries.

Damage estimated at $20,000 was caused by a four-alarm fire at the stables of Frank D. Wilkins and Frank Dimoss, in the rear of No. 44 Dunstable street Charlestown, where four horses were burned to death.

Captain Charles Ingersoll, Ladder 22, Charlestown, of 45 Adams street, Dorchester, removed to Haymarket Square Relief Station,

GALVIN GETS DIVORCE, CARE OF CHILDREN

A divorce, with custody of his two children, was today granted Joseph J. Galvin, wealthy North Cambridge oil dealer.

Judge Legatt of Middlesex Probate Court, East Cambridge, divorced Galvin from his wife, Mary E., on the ground of infidelity with William A. Reynolds, who is serving a year's sentence at East Cambridge jail for passing bad checks.

Although 13-year-old Juanita Galvin testified in behalf of her mother and sat by her side throughout the trial, her custody and that of her 11-year-old sister Helen are given the father.

Mrs. Galvin and Reynolds denied the charges. Mr. Galvin told of a rough and tumble fight with Reynolds when he found him in the Galvin home after returning unexpectedly.

FIREBUGS RECEIVE HEAVY SENTENCES

Brockton, Feb. 27.—Judge Greenhalge today sentenced five defendants convicted in an arson conspiracy case in Plymouth Superior Court. Three of the five received long-term State prison sentences.

John Messey, 10 Hancock street, received twelve to fifteen years in State prison. Liberato Rivelli, 17 Snow street, received a sentence of from ten to twelve years. Harry Kaplan, 63 Cary street, whose cobbling shop, situated beneath a large lodging house, was fired by the two Italians, received from five to seven years.

Salvatore de Meurio, Thatcher street, whose house was burned by the "arson trust" at his behest, received one year in the county House of Correction. John Millano, 63 High street, received two and a half years in the House of Correction.

100 BANQUET GUESTS PTOMAINE VICTIMS

Newburyport, Feb. 27.—More than 100 of the 800 guests who attended the golden jubilee in honor of the Rt. Rev. W. H. Ryan, pastor of the Immaculate Conception Church of this city, have been stricken with an illness closely resembling ptomaine poisoning.

Cold storage turkey or the ice cream served at the banquet is believed responsible for the many cases of the malady. The Rev. Joseph L. Dunn, a curate at the church, and Fr. Regan's assistant, was one of the victims.

The banquet was held in the assembly room of the Town Hall.

Five teachers of the public schools, who attended the banquet, were so seriously affected they were forced to remain away from their desks and nine high school students were unable to attend their classes.

Many of the guests were unable to go to their places of employment the day after the banquet.

Among those stricken were Charles P. Kelly and five members of his family, City Councilor W. J. Cusack and Mrs. Daniel A. Cashman and her daughter.

Washington, Feb. 27.—Rear Admiral William Sims, retired, today vigorously opposed before the House aircraft committee the creation of a unified air service, as urged by Brigadier-General Mitchell, assistant army air chief.

The admiral endorsed the building up of a powerful air force by the United States, however, and declared the airplane would play a predominant part in the next war.

Admiral Sims read an article he wrote in July, 1923, declaring the airplane will hold the key of power in the next war. Bombing tests against the German battleship Ostfriesland, the article said, showed that relatively small bombs could sink a vessel and that no surface ship could long escape destruction if exposed to an attack from the air.

"Even those who claim the battleship is the backbone of the fleet," he said, "admit a fleet must have an adequate air force."

The admiral declared that when two fleets meet at sea "the one with the largest air force will be the ultimate victor, as it can destroy the other's air force and then bomb the ships at will."

The Panama Canal could be defended against capture, he said, if protected by a greater air force than that of the attacking fleet. He predicted an era of competitive building of "mobile naval air forces."

"If Japan should attack Hawaii with a fleet of twelve airplane carriers, other auxiliary craft and no battleships," he said, "she would have an advantage over our fleet of battleships and the Langley."

Such a Japanese fleet, he declared, would be able to "bomb down" the Hawaiian defenses and destroy the planes defending the island.

GLORIA SWANSON HOPES TO QUIT HOSPITAL SOON

MOTHER OF CHILD IN DEATH PACT CASE PLACED ON GRILL

Important developments today in the investigation resulting from the discovery of Frederick Miles, Jr., Boston University law student and his bride, unconscious from veronal poisoning in their Myrtle street apartment, were as follows:

1—Grilling by Middlesex County and State authorities of 19-year-old Minnie Willett, mother of the five-months-old infant born in the Miles home in Newton.

2—Announcement by Russell D. Greene of counsel for Mr. and Mrs. Miles that there is no mystery in the baby's disappearance, and that it will be produced at the proper time.

3—Forecast of prosecution of Mrs. Miles for bigamy by District Attorney O'Brien of Suffolk County.

Miss Willett, unmarried mother of little Theodore Frary Willard, the name given him by Mrs. Miles, was called from her Waltham home to the office of District Attorney Reading today.

There she was questioned by the

LIEUT. R. W. CHRISTIE.

San Francisco, Feb. 27.—Revelations that Lieutenant A. P. Burleigh of Houlton, Maine, whose suicide at Mare Island threatens to open a scandal of "Prussianism" among high navy officers and coercion of the wives of their subordinates was worried by financial matters were found in a note left by the officer.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Frank H. Kennedy, wife of the officer whom Lieutenant Burleigh was defending from charges, fired another blast at the naval "caste" system.

"I found conditions in the Far East highly immoral," Mrs. Kennedy declares. "There is the wildest kind of dissipation among some officers.

"But while many naval officers drink to excess on the Asiatic station, it's not the drinking I criticise so much as the running around of

4 ARE KILLED IN MAINE R. R. WRECK

Gardiner, Me., Feb. 27.—Four men who were serving as caretakers of a shipment of Aroostook potatoes were killed today at Farmingdale, near this city, in a rear-end collision between two westbound freight trains on the Maine Central Railroad.

The men were in the caboose of the potato train, which was on a siding, and their car was demolished as the locomotive of the other train crashed through it.

Search for the bodies of the men, whose names were given as Roy Miller, Sandy Palmer, A. B. Webster and Adelbert Bank, was delayed by fire which started from a stove used to heat one of the potato cars.

WOMAN HUNTED IN BOMB MYSTERY

A mysterious woman was sought today by Postoffice Inspectors in connection with the receipt of a bomb by Matthew J. Fowler, Haverhill optician who has taken an active part in attempts to settle labor disputes in that city.

Postoffice inspectors at the Federal Building in Boston said they had abandoned attempts to trace the bomb to members of labor organizations.

They refused to discuss the woman sought, other than to say she is a stranger to Fowler, and had no place in his past.

Inspectors J. J. Hunt and J. J. Breslin, in charge of the investigation, admitted that the bomb sent Fowler, which injured his clerk, Arthur B. Shield was "peculiarly alike in construction" those sent a Chelsea woman by Louis Mansolilli, now serving a prison term for the offence.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY TO GRILL MRS. MILES TODAY AT HOSPITAL

district attorney with State Detectives Sherlock and O'Neil. The girl told the story of the birth of her child, for the recovery of which she has enlisted the aid of the authorities.

It is understood she told her questioners that Mrs. Miles took care of all the proceedings when the child's birth certificate was made out. The infant she named in honor of her own grandfather, and gave its father's name as Willard, and the mother as Minerva Willett.

The father, said to have been employed in a Waltham shoe factory, is now married. It is understood Willard is not his right name.

Miss Willett is reported to have told the authorities that Mrs. Miles informed her she was unable to carry out her agreement to keep the child and eventually adopt it. Instead she told the girl that the baby had been taken b ya woman in Erie, Pa.

The Waltham girl told the police she had not seen or heard from the child since its removal from the Miles home, despite repeated efforts on her part.

At about the time the authorities were attempting to establish whether or not baby Theodore is still living, and where, Attorney Greene announced that the infant would be produced.

He is a member of the law firm of Mackenzie, Perry & Greene of No. 84 State street, said to have been retained by a sister of Mrs. Miles.

"There is no mystery concerning the disappearance of the child," said Mr. Greene. "He will be produced at the proper time." He refused to give any further details, declaring he would issue a statement shortly.

DENIES SUICIDE PACT.

Greene added that the veronal poisoning of Mr. and Mrs. Miles was not due to a suicide pact, but was entirely an accident.

He expressed the opinion that it was unfortunate that a couple who had performed a charitable act, in taking in Miss Willett so that her baby could be born in their house, should be held up to public scorn.

Mr. Greene made no comment on the matrimonial experiences of Mrs. Miles, which have put her in a position to face prosecution for bigamy.

District Attorney Thomas C. O'Brien declared he will conduct an investigation of the woman's past, and if the facts are as they appear to be he will take action.

Investigation has revealed the fact that the thirty-four year old bride has been four times to the altar, twice while still the wife of other men.

The district attorney will also investigate the so-called suicide pact, as a result of which the couple, suffering from veronal poisoning, are now practically recovered at the Massachusetts General hospital.

Asked if he would place a guard at the woman's bedside in the hospital the district attorney replied: "It is quite likely I shall if things turn out as I expect."

Sensational developments are promised in this strange case which has stirred the undergraduates at Boston University, where young Miles, latest husband of Dorothea Houghton, Vermont farmer's daughter, is one of the ranking seniors in the law course.

PROBE FORMER MARRIAGES.

A probe of the history of the 34-year-old wife who has four times been to the altar, once with a farmer, once with a railroad conductor [illegible] twice with Boston University students, has amazed the authorities.

Not only is District Attorney O'Brien taking energetic hold of the case, but District Attorney Arthur K. Reading of Middlesex County has taken a hand in the case.

The "mystery baby" which puzzled the neighbors when the young student and his wife lived in an elaborately furnished home in Newton has been revealed as the daughter of Miss Minnie Willett, a 19-year-old girl of Waltham, who, in reply to an advertisement of the student and his wife for a baby, went to their home shortly before she was to become a mother.

The student and his wife took the girl in, the child was born and for a time was kept by the Miles couple. Later, according to the story of the young mother, the student's wife told him it was impossible to keep the baby lnger—that it was causing trouble between herself and her husband. Subsequently, Mrs. Miles claimed, after advertising in the Boston newspapers, that the baby was taken for adoption by a woman living in Erie, Pa.

ASKS FOR CHILD.

Miss Willett has further complicated the matter by appealing to District Attorney Reading to procure the return of her child, the second that has been born to her.

The uncovering of the marital career of the student's wife gave the authorities the first intimation that the so-called suicide pact might develop a case requiring criminal prosecution.

At the time the "toast of the Balk Bay" was married to Frederick M. Miles, Jr., the records show she was the wife of Wilfred I. Larson of No. 6 Waverly street, Roxbury, a graduate of Tufts medical collegeg, who is remaining in Boston to pass his State medical examination.

She was married to Larson at Providence, R. I., January 9, 1919, and left her husband three years later. It was not until January 7 of the present year, less than two months ago, that Dr. Larson had the marriage annulled on the ground that when he married the girl she was already the wife of Timothy E. Flynn of Greenfield, a former Boston & Maine conductor, whom she married at Brattleboro, Vt., on July 8, 1915.

It was not until March, 1923, that the girl obtained a divorce from Flynn, or two years after she had left Dr. Larson, whom she married after leaving Flynn. Her first marriage was to Irwin R. Fifield of Bellows Falls, Vt. This marriage occurred in 1908, when Dorothea Houghton was seventeen. Her divorce from Fifield in 1913 appears to be regular.

The plight of Dorothea Houghton Miles brings to light an intimate cross-section of life as it is lived in certain quarters of Back Bay.

PROMINENT SUNDAY.

The daughter of a Vermont farmer, Dorothy Houghton was an unusually good looking girl and [illegible] was eagerly sought after by the young men in the vicinity of her home at Houghton, Vt., named after an uncle.

First married when she was seventeen, she was an unsophisticated country girl. Her youthful husband took her to Leyden, Mass., to live for a time, and later to Hartford. She had her first taste of city life. When she and her husband separated and she obtained a divorce, she returned to her home in Vermont and several years later she married Flynn, the conductor.

The marriage lasted but a few months. Then Dorothea, by this time somewhat sophisticated, came to Boston. It was in 1916. Within a few months she was the toast of the Back Bay. She was sought after by students, by lawyers, by doctors and by others who frequent Boston's Bohemia.

their wives with other men. There are plenty of women who would leave their husbands if they went to the Asiatic station."

Mrs. Kennedy says that the conditions she describes do not affect all naval officers in the Orient, but that they do apply in a large number of cases.

"Many men who go for duty on the station never return the same," she declares. "In some cases excesses have been so great that officers have been brought back to the United States mentally deranged."

Mrs. Kennedy bases her fight for her husband's freedom on the charge that after Lieutenant R. W. Christie had "insulted" her by asking her to take an automobile ride with him in Hong Kong, and she had refused to do so, Christie inflicted humiliation upon her husband. Christie was commanding officer of the submarine S-17, of which Lieutenant Kennedy was navigating officer.

WILLETT GIRL WANTS BABY RETURNED.

Mother of Child In Suicide Pact Case Tells How Mrs. Miles Cared for It

Miss Minnie Willett, nineteen-year-old mother of the infant which has played such an important part in the alleged suicide pact of Frederick Miles, Jr., Boston University law student and his much married wife, wants her baby back.

According to the Willett girl she only "loaned" the child to Miles and his wife, and unknown to her and without her consent, they got rid of the child, telling her it had been given to a woman in Erie, Pa.

LIVED WITH RANDPARENTS.

The Willett girl lives with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe Haley at No. 167 Lexington street, Waltham. Her sister Fannie, aged fourteen, also lives with the grandparents, the sisters living with them because of difficulty at home.

The girl had written to District Attorney Arthur K. Reading, asking that her child be returned to her. The girl reveals a pathetic story.

Although only nineteen, she is the mother of two children. The first was born after she quit high school, while a member of the sophomore class. This child is at St. Mary's Orphan Asylum at Dorchester.

"In November, 1921," she said, "grandmother was forced to give up housekeeping and Fannie and I had to go back home with our mother and father, who were living on Browns avenue. I lived there until August, 1923, when I had trouble with the folks and in order to make things more tranquil at home I got out. I hired a room in West Newton and later another place in Waltham.

MET YOUTH.

"I met a boy at the shop who used to buy me candy. We went to the movies together and I grew to like him real well. When I discovered he had another sweetheart, naturally I felt bad and did my best to avoid him.

"I was almost despondent. Night after night I wondered what I could do? I saw an ad in the Boston papers about a young married couple who wanted to adopt a new born baby. I answered it. The next day Mrs. Miles called at the place where I was rooming. I happened to be out but the following day she sent for me. She instructed me to come to No. 47 Brookdale road, Newton. I went there to see her.

"Mrs. Miles agreed to keep and support the baby for ten years and then she said she would legally adopt it. She said she would let me know where she was living at all times so as I could call or write to inquire about the baby. I did not make any arrangements to see the child. She promised that if anything did arise she would see that the child was taken care of properly.

CHILD WELL CARED FOR.

"The last time I went to see my baby was two days before Thanksgiving. Everything was fine there, the baby was well, and he looked wonderful, rigged out in such style that would make any mother proud.

"I heard nothing then until the first week in January, when Mrs. Miles called me and said she could no longer take care of the baby because it was causing trouble between herself and husband. I was somewhat disappointed because things had developed so wonderfully. Mrs. Miles said she was willing to keep the baby and pay for its boarding out, but that her husband was obdurate and refused to have anything more to do with it.

"She said she would advertise in the paper for someone to adopt the child. I finally agreed that under the circumstances that was the best thing to do. The next day I saw the ad in a paper. Two days following I inquired if she had received any answers to my ad. Mrs. Miles said that she did and that a woman from Pennsylvania had already called the Sunday previous to our conversation and that this woman had taken the baby away with her.

"She said she had looked up the woman's credentials and that she found she came from a comfortable family in Pennsylvania. I asked Mrs. Miles about the adoption papers and she replied that the woman was going to send them from Pennsylvania and that she in turn would send them to me for my signature. I never received them. The next thing I heard about the Mileses was today when I read about their suicide attempt."

MRS. MILES IS PROVEN TWICE BIGAMIST

Wed Three Times Before Meeting Last Husband Records Show

Mrs. Dorothea Miles, wife of Frederick Miles, Jr., Boston University law student and one of the central figures on the so-called suicide pact attempted in a Beacon Hill apartment, is revealed, by marriage license records, as having been married four times.

In at least two of the cases, the records show, Mrs. Miles took on a new husband without waiting for the law to free her from the bonds that joined her to her existing mate.

The records also show that the real age of Mrs. Miles is thirty-four years, while she told Miles, her latest husband when she was married, last year that she was twenty-six.

BORN IN VERMONT.

Born in Houghtonville, Vt., Dorothea Houghton embarked upon her first matrimonial career in 1908, when at the age of seventeen she became the bride of Irwin R. Fifield of Bellows Fall, Vt. The couple were married at Bellows Falls, which is about twenty-five miles from Houghtonville. The couple lived together about two years, during which time they lived in Leyden, Mass., and Hartford, Ct. The wife applied for a divorce at the end of three years' time and was granted it on the grounds of desertion. She was given the right to resume her maiden name.

The complete list of Dorothea Houghton's marital attainments, so far as the authorities have learned from the records, are:

First marriage: To Irwin R. Fifield at Bellows Falls, Vt., on May 12, 1908. Divorced on December 3, 1913, on grounds of desertion.

Second marriage: To Timothy E. Flynn of Greenfield, conductor on Boston & Maine Railroad. Married at Brattleboro, Vt., on July 8, 1915. Divorce action started by wife in 1917 on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment, but divdrce not granted until March 23, 1923.

DUPLICITY CONCEALED.

Third marriage: To Walfred I. Larson of Baltimore, Md. Married at Providence, R. I., on January 9, 1919, although she was still the wife of Timothy E. Flynn. Larson, a Tufts medical student, had the marriage annulled on January 7, 1925.

Fourth marriage: To Frederick Miles, Jr., of New York city, Boston University law student. Married at Boston, January 10, 1924, while still the wife of Walfred I. Larson.

Had young Miles and his wife not been found suffering from poison in a Myrtle street apartment, it is doubtful if the apparent life of duplicity of the Back Bay woman would ever have become known.

When Mrs. Miles applied for a marriage license to marry Miles at City Hall, Boston, she declared it was her first venture into matrimony. She also gave an incorrect age.

Larson, the third husband of the woman, is living at No. 6 Waverly street, Roxbury, waiting to take his State medical examination, following his graduation from Tufts Medical College.

Larson met the girl when he was discharged from the army in 1919 and came to Boston to enter Tufts. After a brief courtship the couple were married in Providence. Although the woman was still the wife of Timothy E. Flynn, the Greenfield man formerly employed as a railroad conductor, she declared, in obtaining her marriage license, that it was her first marriage. The couple separated in 1921 when the wife disappeared.

Her own address at the time of the Providence marriage was given as No. 116 Warren street, Brighton. Her middle name then was Hearietta, which she changed to Holbrook when she met young Miles.

Larson said that they lived together as husband and wife until 1921, when she disappeared.

Last September Larson found that his "wife" was living in West Newton, so he asked the Superior Court to decree his marriage with her null and void. It came up for a hearing January 7, 1925. Dorothea was not there, despite the serving of notice on her.

Miles said that he was born in New York city, the son of Frederick Miles and Mrs. Alethea Barton Miles of Salisbury, Ct. Recently his father died and his mother moved to New York.

File State Tax Returns by Monday

Monday is the last day for filing State Income Tax returns, and, remember, the Commonwealth authorities are rigorous in their application of the law.

Payments, however, are optional with the filing of the returns. If they are not paid the State sends a bill later.

Uncle Sam permits an extension of time to March 15 for the filing of Federal returns and payments, but Collector Nichols urges that these be made at once.

Engineman John J. Breslin, No. 25 Marvin street, Charlestown; contusions to left wrist. Treated at Haymarket Relief Station and discharged.

CRASH THROUGH ROOF.

Captain Ingersoll and Ladderman Sullivan were injured when the roof of the stable collapsed. They were rescued by other firemen.

The other injured firemen were injured by falling timbers and planks.

The six horses that were burned to death were in the Wilkins stable. Three others were rescued. Eight horses were rescued from the stable of Libby & Huckins, truckers, and four from Dimase's stable.

The firemen battled the blaze from the historic Phipps street cemetery, where John Harvard, founder of Harvard University and other celebrities are buried.

Policemen John Crawford, Edward G. Murphy and several teamsters led the rescued horses from the burning building.

A large amount of hay and grain and an automobile were destroyed.

The fire in the Roosevelt apartments at Lynn was confined to the two upper stories of the building. As the building was unoccupied this is one of the features that has convinced authorities the blaze was of an incendiary nature.

The building is located in the heart of the business district and for a time the adjoining Arno office building and a five-story lodging house were menaced.

The proprietor of the apartment building had recently been ordered to change the name of the building because it was "an insult to the memory of the late President Roosevelt."

In a recent raid on the place several women were arrested and the license commissioner is known to have been considering revocation of the poopriетor's license.

Several firemen narrowly escaped injury when a scaling ladder to the third floor fell to the ground.

Damage is estimated at $10,000.

'Catholic-Futurist' Rector Gives New Set of Positive Commandments

By MYRON PARROT.

New York, Feb. 27 (Universal Service). — Dr. William Norman Guthrie, "Catholic-Futurist," rector of historic St. Mark's-on-the-Bouwerie, the oldest and the most modern in Manhattan, has rewritten the ten commandments.

Deprived of Episcopal visitation and ministration almost a year ago, after he had staged, in place of evening prayer, "pagan" terpsichorean rites in which young women with bare legs and flowing diaphanous draperies took part, Dr. Guthrie, backed by his vestrymen, formulated doctrines for a new Christianity which they consider compatible with modern science and civilization.

In a number of instances the moral dicti proffered by Dr. Guthrie are directly opposed to the precepts "laid down by the Creator on the engraven tablets of stone."

The God of the futurist pastor's decalogue is not a "jealous God." He recognizes all other gods, the gods of the Indians and Hindoos and Africans and Greeks and Romans as his equals, "if they are deemed sacred, right and beneficient." He ordains:

"Thou shalt honor, worship and realize the union with the one imminent and transcendent God that unifies the universe.

"Thou shalt reverently recognize and acknowledge that one, in all 'forms,' however backward and repugnant they may be to thee, if those forms are to others sincerely acceptable, and the only symbols intellectually and emotionally effective for their fellow-men.

"Thou shalt, when earnestly invited or desired, participate in worship; nor ever deny or scoff, much less interfere with, the devotion of others, though thine own thought and practice be, in thine own superiorly educated opinion, based upon every especial personal experience, for other and better from that of them who desire or require thy fellowship in what they deem sacred, right and beneficent."

SLAYS YOUTH WHO DISOWNED CHILD

Olympia Macri, 18-year-old New Haven opera student who shot to death John Bagnano, 20-year-old singer, known as the "sheik of the cabarets," who, she says deceived her and refused to support child of which she claims he was the father.

New Haven, Ct., Feb. 27 (I.N.S.)—Police officials moved swiftly today to learn the facts behind the slaying of John Bagnano, alias John Bunyan, of Jersey City and New Haven, by Olympia Macri, a pretty eighteen-year-old girl, in the midst of a theatre crowd here.

"I am glad he is dead," the girl insisted today, repeating the assertion she made several times after the shooting.

Barred from her relatives and prevented from having an attorney's support by orders of Coroner Mix, following the custom prevailing here, Miss Macri had only such aid as a police matron might give her during the night, and today, outwardly calm, rode to the coroner's office to face another grilling.

HEARD IN SECRET.

Coroner's hearings here are conducted in secrecy. Behind barred doors Miss Macri, who is a grand opera student, today faced several persons who are believed to have been witnesses of the shooting. Coroner Mix had nothing to say in the brief intervals when he was available, and indicated he would make no statement on the case until he delivered his formal finding.

Nicholas Macri, father of the girl, quickly outlined the story behind the tragedy. He declared that Bagnano, known as "the Sheik of Cabarets," more than a year ago, had taken his daughter for an automobile ride, drugged her and dishonored her. A child was born last August, he said, and then he drove the girl from his home. She lived with an aunt here from that time. Macri is the father of eleven children, Olympia being his third.

YOUTH WAS MARRIED.

Bagnano, twenty, was married and a father, the police say. He had lived in New Jersey until recently. An amateur singer of some reputation, Bagnano visited a local theatrical booking office.

Miss Macri apparently had been watching for him, for when he left the office and reached the sidewalk, the girl pushed through a crowd leaving a theatre in the building and sprayed him with shots from a 38-calibre revolver.

A police sergeant near by sprang at the girl, who had emptied her revolver before he could reach her. While an ambulance was being summoned the girl looked calmly at the body of Bagnano, crumpled in the gutter, handed her revolver to the officer and walked with him to police headquarters several blocks away.

LIEUT. WOOD DELAYED IN QUITTING SPAIN

By FREDERIC ABOTT

Barcelona, Spain, Feb. 27 (I.N.S.).—Lieutenant Osborne C. Wood still was in Barcelona today vexed and a bit worried because of complications which threatened to delay his proposed start for the United States.

"Powell, manager of the Barcelona office of the International Banking Corporation, is threatening to delay my sailing until he gets some sort of assurance that my $3,000 Madrid draft eventually will be paid," Wood said.

"I have only 2,000 pesetas in my pocket out of the $3,000 check. It looks as if I won't be able to take the first boat out of here."

A Barcelona newspaper published today a story that Wood had attempted to go by airplane to a Spanish port but had been forced to desist by engine trouble. It asserted also that police were searching for Wood.

Weiwire Barrington Bridegroom, wire-haired fox terrier, adjudged best dog this week at the annual show of the Eastern Dog Club, will not be entered again in any show, according to Joseph Booth, manager of Welwire Kennels, Shrewsbury, of which Homer Gage, Jr., is proprietor. "Bridegroom" will be used exclusively in the future for stud purposes. He is valued at $5,000. He was adjudged best dog two years in succession at the Eastern shows.

Two Missing in Fire

St. Paul, Feb. 27.—Fire today swept the Hendrick's building in the business district here. Two persons were unaccounted for. Three were rescued. The loss is $750,000. Eight below zero weather and a stiff wind hampered firemen.

EBERT GAINS AFTER GOOD NIGHT'S REST

Berlin, Feb. 27 (I.N.S.).—A second operation was performed on President Ebert this afternoon. It was an unusually difficult puncturing operation made necessary by peritonitis which followed the first operation for appendicitis early Tuesday. His condition was "precarious," his physicians said.

Berlin, Feb. 27.—President Ebert, critically ill because of peritonitis following an operation for appendicitis, gained during the night, and hope arose today that he has passed the crisis.

The bulletin issued by physicians attending the President said:

"The President spent a restful night. There have been no further complications."

All republican Germany awaited in suspense today the outcome of the illness of the first President.

Telegrams and cables of sympathy continued today to pour in from all parts of the world.

Hogs Bring Record Price

Indianapolis, Feb. 7.—All local price records for hogs for the last five years were shattered today when the top price reached $12.60 with a supply of 7,500 hogs on hand.

STUDENT PROVIDES MYSTERY FOR B. U.

Miss Audrey Ware, whose engagement has caused a flurry among Boston University students. Miss Ware, who appeared in the B. U. show, and who is popular at the university, is to be married, but she has failed to give the name of the lucky man. It is easy to imagine how the curiosity of the girl students is aroused.

B. U. SENIOR IS ENGAGED TO WED

You can't ever depend on the ladies and Audrey Ware, senior at Boston University, is a crying example of this very same thing.

When Audrey was but a mere youngster at B. U., as you might say, she gave it out to those who cared, that she wanted to be an actress.

Then when she was an actress featuring in the B. U. girls' show at Keith's, she reckoned that on the day she discovered herself to be a good stenographer or secretary, she would jump up in the air and click her little heels three times, or words to that effect, for very joy.

And now that Audrey has become a very good stenographer, she up and announced today that she guesses marriage is the best bet after all and she's gone and got herself engaged.

Not that it matters any, of course, but pretty Audrey plumb forgot to mention the name or identity of the happily-delirious bridegroom-to-be.

Fie, Audrey! Fie! You can't be depended upon—and all Brookline just agog over the "whom" of the boy friend.

Indianapolis, Feb. 27 (A.P.)—Sessions of the Indiana Senate, blocked for two days by the absence of Democratic members who left the State and went to Dayton, Ohio, in an effort to halt action on a gerrymander bill, were resumed today when the truants returned to their seats.

MACMILLEN IS WELCOMED AT SYMPHONY

American Violinist Pleases Large Audience With Varied Program

Francis Macmillen, American violinist long unheard in Boston, played before a large audience last night at Symphony Hall. Mr. Macmillen was soloist with the Boston Symphony Orchestra as far back as 1910, and was already a star when many of the present generation of violinists were in swaddling clothes. In spite of that he still seems a youthful figure on the concert stage.

The main item on his program was Lalo's Spanish Symphony, which has been played frequently in Boston this year and would require a super-genius to make it sound well at this time. He also played a neat little barcarolle of his own devising and his arrangement of a gavotte by Chantrelle.

A Berceuse by Faure pleased greatly. A spirited performance of Saint-Saens' "Rondo Capriccioso" ended the program. The audience was unusually enthusiastic for a week-night concert, and insisted on recalling the violinist for a number of extra pieces at the close.

Skating Stars Sparkle in "Venetian Festival"

Jacoby Club Arranging Musical Treat for Early Spring Calendar With Concert at the Copley-Plaza

By Betty Alden

A RIOT OF COLOR AND MANY OF THE accomplished members of the Boston Skating Club were potent factors in the success, pictorially speaking, of the annual Ellis Memorial Skating Carnival which society stages at the Arena.

THE VENETIAN FESTIVAL, "Bucinlord," abounding in symbolic and rhythmic figure skating, chosen for this year's carnival, furnished the clever skaters of the club with no end of material wherewith to delight their many admirers.

MRS. THERESA WELD BLANCHARD, holder of many amateur championships won in this country, in Canada and abroad, naturally was a magnet of stellar attraction, ably seconded by Nathaniel Niles, Mrs. Channing Frothingham, Dorothy Weld and many another member of Boston's smart Skating Club.

"BUCINLORD" symbolizes the wedding of Venice and the Adriatic, and Nathaniel Niles impersonated the Adriatic, the Ring was done by Mrs. Blanchard, and the Doge of Venice was A. Winsor Weld, father of the talented Mrs. Blanchard.

LANTERN BEARERS, Fisher Folk, Flower Girls and other pictureful characters abounded. Jessie Bancroft, daughter of General Hugh Bancroft and Mrs. Bancroft; Evelyn Windeler, of the buds; Edith Sigourney, a star of the ice and the tennis courts, all had their parts to play.

A SPIRITED TARANTELLA, a difficult number especially well executed, was done by Gertrude Dutton, Mildred Hill, Mrs. Nathaniel Niles, Thornton Coolidge, Arthur Goodrich, Richard Hapgood and Louis Van N. Washburn.

MRS. JAMES JACKSON, JR., or, as she is known to her intimates, "Mrs. Jimmie" Jackson, and T. Harleston Parker had the arduous duty of awarding the prizes, a task needing the finest discrimination, but one executed with much dispatch and finish.

OF COURSE, THE patronage was distinctive—the roster including Mrs. Robert Homans, Mrs. George H. Lyman, Jr.; Mrs. Richard C. Paine, Mrs. John C. Phillips, Mrs. John Hoar, Mrs. William Yorke Peters, Mrs. Richard Middlecott Saltonstall, Mrs. Dudley L. Pickman, Mrs. John Post, Mrs. Alexander Whiteside, Mrs. Samuel Warren and hosts of others.

THE JACOBY CLUB and all its affiliated musical personages and music lovers is arranging a treat for the early Spring calendar, when on March 15 it stages a concert at the Copley-Plaza.

MADAME NAARDYN LYSKA, with a wealth of travel and experience all about the globe as background, and a fluent command of several languages, is the artiste taking star place in the program.

SHE SINGS OLD Chinese and Japanese airs, Rumanian and Portuguese chants, Russian songs and favorites from the masters. With each number goes as a bit of local color, so to speak, a few words of explanation concerning its origin and meaning.

THE FASHIONABLE sets of New York have heard her at the Biltmore; Bar Harbor applauded her appearance in the Temple of Music, and Newport greeted her warmly at its Art Association. Boston society is rendering support.

MESDAMES Josiah Quincy, Nathan Matthews, Barrett Andrews, Bartol Parker, Guy Walker, George Foote, Edmund Talbot, Charles Whitney, Amory Lawrence, Joseph Fay, Edward Thaw, Richard Strong, Jeffrey Whitney and Henry Lloyd Smith are patronesses. Mrs. Anita Davis Chase has the subscriptions in charge.

FORMAL INVITATIONS to the Harvard junior dance soon go out to a waiting world of femininity and will without doubt bring joy to the young women so fortunate as to be bidden to this annual very jolly college festivity.

THE DANCE is arranged for May 8, in Memorial Hall, Cambridge, and boxes are already being assigned to groups of twelve or twenty-four young people.

JUNIORS managing the dance modestly announce that the cards of invitation are keepsakes "treasured in the debutante heart," which bit of grandiloquence is probably junior Harvardese meaning that everyone loves to attend this merriest of college dances.

JACKIE COOGAN'S WIT ROUTS SCENARIST

Among the persistent pests that haunt the studios in Los Angeles is the "would-be" scenarist. In the natural course of events which followed Jackie Coogan's rise to stardom, these numberless persons who nurtured the spark of literary genius swarmed over the Coogan offices. When the company moved to the Metro lot to start the filming of "The Rag Man," coming to Loew's State next Monday, their numbers were legion.

Jackie Coogan

Jackie, an extremely impressionable youth, soon was able to recognize them on sight. One day when Jackie was standing on a set other than his own, an ever-present nuisance approached the young star and remarked patronizingly: "My, isn't that a nice big stove over in that set. What do you suppose they burn in it to keep it so red hot?" Jackie clasped his tiny hands behind his back, and drawled in a rather indifferent tone: "Sometimes they burn wood and sometimes coal, but mostly scenarios."

LASELL SOPHOMORES TO ENTERTAIN SENIORS

The annual party of the sophomore class to the members of the senior class of Lasell Seminary will take place tomorrow night in the hall of the Woodland Park Junior School. Dancing will be a feature of the affair, though the sophomores have provided a number of surprises.

JOHN D., JR., IN ROLE OF WILL ROGERS

Tells "One" on His "Dad," Imitating the Comedian's Gesture and Drawl

New York, Feb. 27.—John D Rockefeller, Jr., has blossomed out as a wit. He told story after story, some of them pretty old, and imitated Will Rogers, even to gesture and drawl.

Telling how Rogers had expressed a desire to meet Rockefeller, the speaker quoted the comedian as follows:

"The old guy is the one I want to meet. He just made the money. That's easy, but he turned the hard part over to this guy here, saying: 'You can work, I'm going South to play golf.'"

Mr. Rockefeller told the story of the inmate of an asylum for the insane, who turned over a pot of boiling water on visitors standing under a window.

"Why," asked the doctor, "did you do that?"

"Well," replied the inmate, "if you're going to be an idiot, you might as well be a hell of an idiot."

101-METRE MAN TO SPEAK FROM WNAC TONIGHT

Giuseppe Faccioli, of the General Electric Company, and who is ranked with Tesla, Steinmetz, and Elihu Thompson as one of the leading electrical engineers of America, will broadcast from Station WNAC tonight, as part of an entertainment sponsored by the Pettingell-Andrews Electric Company.

Faccioli is known far and wide in the electrical world as "The 101-Metre Man." As a youth he was employed by Stanley, the great pioneer of the General Electric Company, and was assigned to calculate in advance the characteristics of a new type of alternating current generator, which Stanley had just designed.

The young man devoted much time and care to the problem, and finally figured out that the generator would consume 101 ampheres of current.

As Faccioli expected, Stanley was skeptical to the point of amusement when the calculations were laid before him.

"Young man," he exclaimed, "you are probably fifty per cent. out of the way."

A few days later, Stanley and a group of engineers—and young Faccioli with the rest— gathered about the new generator to see the test carried out. Everybody watched the ammeter as the needle began to move up. It passed the fifty mark. Then it went on to sixty, to seventy, to eighty, and still climbed. At length, to everybody's astonishment, it stopped at exactly 101 amperes!

gasoline, thirty cents and more, that made the country shiver, will seem mild one of these days, unless great additional sources of oil are soon discovered. Barring such discoveries, you may prepare for fifty-cent gasoline, and the "take it or leave it" attitude that comes when supplies are scarce.

THE CONGRESSIONAL aircraft investigation is to continue, fortunately. Rear Admiral Jones testifies that the Navy needs, especially, construction of aircraft, and submarine protection.

Everybody else knows it, except those whose eyes are covered by thick yellow or green paper held out by battleship manufacturers.

FIRST COMES need of swift pursuit planes to attack any invading aircraft. Second, submarines to sink aircraft carriers that might bring enemy flying machines within striking distance of our coast.

TEN YEARS AGO anybody attacking the United States would have been compelled to land troops on the shore. Now it would only be necessary to release from huge freighters, well disguised, a big flock of airplanes, one or two hundred miles off the coast and out of sight.

Every dollar hereafter spent on coast defence guns is a dollar thrown away. And every dollar spent on building battleships is a dollar spent to supply targets for aircraft.

APPROVAL OF POSTAL BILL EXPECTED

Now Believed That President Coolidge Will Sign the Measure

Washington, Feb. 27.—The fate of the postal pay and rate increase bill now rests with President Coolidge, the Senate having joined the House in approving the conference report virtually substituting the House bill for the measure previously twice approved by the Senate.

Administration leaders believe the bill will receive the President's approval. During the short debate which preceded the Senate's adoption of the report yesterday by a vote of 69 to 12, Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, one of the conferees, told the Senate the President had insisted on some of the higher rates carried in the House bill as compared with those in the Senate measure.

Longworth Favored to Win Speakership

Washington, Feb. 27.—Although both camps are confidently claiming victory in the speakership contest between Nicholas Longworth of Ohio and Martin B. Madden of Illinois, to be decided at the caucus tonight of Republican members-elect of the House, neither is showing any laxity in efforts to line up the new members as they arrive. The Massachusetts G. O. P. House members are said to favor Longworth.

Victory for either candidate makes certain his election to the speakership, as the caucus decision for the first time since the days of Speaker Cannon will be binding.

VETS' SCHEME IS DEFENDED BY BOSTON MAN

John T. Nolan, Head of Disabled Soldiers' League, Denies Fraud Charges

Washington, Feb. 27.—John T. Nolan, a Boston man, national commander of the National Disabled Soldiers' League, made a general denial before a House investigating committee today of charges of fraud lodged against the League.

Testifying after he had signed a waiver of immunity, Nolan explained the League's pencil selling campaign to raise funds, around which many of the charges have centered.

Nolan denied that he had represented himself as a member of Congress; had paid to fix the New York District Attorney's office; had paid for favorable newspaper stories or had tried to fix the House committee.

Last year, Nolan told the committee, he drew $3,300 salary from the league, $300 the year before and $200 the year prior to that.

Ink Paste in Sandwiches Tastes Fine

Hudson, Feb. 27.—Ink paste sandwiches are the latest delicacy. They were partaken by members of Hudson Post American Legion, and auxiliary, who mistook a box of ink paste on a piano in the G. A. R. rooms for jelly.

The paste had been left there by George A. Derby, a printer. A box of sandwiches was left on top of the ink paste. Both boxes were taken to the dining room and the "jelly" used as additional filling for the sandwiches. No ill effects followed.

Mrs. Rice refused to tell detectives of the child's whereabouts, and efforts of Foster Rice, the father, who arrived here, to locate her, were fruitless.

WINTHROP MAN FIRED ON AT REVERE

Several shots were fired today in connection with a mixup in the Crescent Beach Garage on North Shore road, Revere, which the police were called on to investigate.

At the conclusion of their investigation the police said they would ask for a warrant for the arrest of Clarence H. Waldo of No. 110 Grover avenue, Winthrop.

The police say that the night man of the garage asserts he fired in the air to stop Waldo after the latter had knocked down two men while backing out of the garage, following a gasoline purchase.

The police also say that Mrs. Eva Coombs was in the automobile at the time. The car, which was later located by the police in the Highland Garage, Winthrop, is registered in the name of Mrs. Coombs' husband, Harry Coombs, of No. 185 Devonshire street, Boston. According to the police, a bullet had passed through the rear window of the automobile and out through the windshield.

According to the police, the men knocked down by Waldo's car are Daniel MvQueeney and Frank Wise of Revere. Both were treated at the home of a physician near the garage. Their legs were severely bruised, according to the police.

When the police talked with Waldo they say he told them an attempt had been made in the garage to hold him up.

'WHITE CARGO' STAR BALKS AT DISROBING

Isabel Hebert Quits Show at Baltimore to Preserve "Sense of Decency"

New York, Feb. 27.—"I have to earn my living, but that doesn't mean that I am going to strip all my clothes off for the sake of the box office."

Such was the indignant explanation given by Isabel Hebert, star in White Cargo, who was dismissed from a road company at Baltimore because she would not disrobe on the stage.

She has been playing the role of the half-breed Tondeleyo and was asked to remove a silken bodice, which was practically all she had on:

"It isn't fair to ask me to do that sort of thing," she protested to the management.

In reply she received a shrug of the shoulders in the direction of the box office. Then she added:

"I mean it. Either I am adequately clothed or I must decline to play."

Then came the notice of her dismissal.

On reaching New York today she conferred with her lawyers and then gave an interview in which she said:

"I was brought up to regard decency as one of the dearest possessions of a woman. And there is a certain limit beyond which I will not go.

"Don't think I am a prude. I am worldly enough to portray certain roles, but they asked too much.

"There is no hard feeling between DeWitt Newing, manager of the show, and myself. I simply disagreed on the way the part should be portrayed."

World Is Made Better by Acts Like This

Conductor No. 2384 of the Boston Elevated Railway is the latest candidate for the Hall of Fame, where are recorded the names of public servants who step beyond the line of duty to lighten another's burden or make his way smooth.

On one trip on an outbound Ipswich street car Conductor 2384 performed several acts of kindness. He repaired the handle of a straw suitcase for an elderly woman, overburdened with bundles. He carefully guided a blind woman down the aisle of the car and saw her safely off, and he was especially careful of sick and crippled children going to the Children's Hospital.

When you come across acts of this kind let the City Editor of the Boston Evening American know about them. If the performer of the courteous deed is a fireman, policeman, railroad employe or letter carrier give his number or other means of identification.

HUNT BORGLUM IN SEVERAL PLACES

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 27 (I.N.S.).—Dekalb county authorities who hold a warrant for his arrest, members of the Stone Mountain Memorial Monument Association, his friends and attorneys, today admitted themselves puzzled over the disappearance of Gutzon Borglum, sculptor, and Jesse Tucker, his assistant, following their alleged wrecking of models, designs and data for completion of the stone mountain memorial of the Southern Confederacy.

Borglum was discharged as sculptor in charge of the work previous to his alleged wreckage of the models. Borglum is charged only with a misdemeanor. Under Georgia law only a fine is provided for conviction of "malicious mischief."

Bevy of Beauties to Aid Dance of Council of Jewish Women by Selling Delicacies

Candy girls will add much charm and beauty to the vaudeville show and dance to be given in Whitney Hall tomorrow night under the auspices of the Council of Jewish Women. A group of attractive representatives of the younger set, headed by Miss Bertha Rosenau, will quickly dispose of candy bouquets, it is expected.

The bevy of Boston favorites on the committee includes the Misses Julia Baer, Gertrude Dana, Mildred Ellis, Ruth Goodman, Irene Hambro, Annette Morris, Gertrude Marks, Irene Murr, Marion Nathan, Selma Pelonsky and Helen Wachtel.

Miss Rosenau, chairman, is the daughter of Mrs. Milton J. Rosenau, president of the Council of Jewish Women, who are sponsoring the affair with the co-operation of the Council Juniors. Miss Ruth Alexander, representing the Junior organization, is assistant of the dramatics. Mrs. Henry G. Morris is in charge of tomorrow night's activity.

Miss Nathan will be hailed with especial greeting. She is a Smith's College student and is expected in Boston in time to be a "candy girl."

Latest moving pictures of Palestine will be shown at the Capitol Theatre, Malden, Sunday night, it is announced by S. I. Kaplan, president of the Malden Zionist District. Hundreds are expected to view the scenes of the Holy Land. Mendel N. Fisher, executive secretary of the New England Region, will speak and a musical program with Ervin Halpern will be offered. Malden is sponsoring many activities in an attempt to increase membership in the Zionist movement.

Those who were unable to hear Dr. Schmarya Levin when he spoke in Tremont Temple, will be given the opportunity of hearing the dynamic Zionist present his views in the Blue Hill avenue synagogue tonight. He will deliver a special lecture on important phases of Jewish life. Dr. Levin is a brilliant publicist.

• • •

"Men Must Sow Their Wild Oats" will be the subject of the third of Dr. Levi's series on "Crystallized Lies" which he will offer Sunday morning. If one wants to be convinced that these old sayings are false and wrong he has only to listen to one of Boston's most brilliant rabbis. At the sermon last Sunday many were turned away because of a capacity audience. Dr. Levi's sermons prove such a drawing card for the young folks.

19c Sale

Again a Brookside 19c Sale. The public can easily judge a reduction in price. Not always, however, does it instantly detect a reduction in quality! For to judge quality often takes a lifetime of expert buying on a large scale, such as Brookside buyers do. Brookside quality is always tested—always upheld! And prices for that quality are lower simply because of economical business management, our wasteless plan of distribution, and the enormous buying power of nearly 500 Brookside Stores operating as a unit. FRANCE SEEKS GUARANTEE TO EVACUATE COLOGNE

Paris, Feb. 27 (A.P.)—The allies now are discussing through diplomatic channels whether it will be safe to evacuate the Cologne bridgehead, no matter what Germany may promise to do with reference to the clauses of the Treaty of Versailles which the report of the allied military control mission alleges she has violated. The evacuation of the area is regarded in French circles as directly bound up with the security of France and Belgium in such a way that some satisfactory guarantees ought to be given in addition to assurances that specific violations will come to an end.

NO PADLOCK ON COUNT KAROLYI, OFFICIALS SAY

Is Free to Answer Charge He Misappropriated Funds Collected in U. S.

Washington, Feb. 27.—Two communications emanating from the State Department today disclaimed any intention of unduly infringing upon the free speech rights of Count Karolyi, former Hungarian President, now in New York, but indicated the department expected him to keep his pledge not to engage in political activity while here.

Secretary Hughes informed Chairman Borah of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee that no question of freedom of speech, in a proper sense, was deemed to be involved in the understanding with Karolyi. The Count was permitted to enter to visit his wife, who is ill.

At the same time the department made public a letter addressed by William R. Castle, Jr., chief of the Division of Western European Affairs, to Morris L. Ernst, Karolyi's New York lawyer asserting that Karolyi's friends had exaggerated the whole situation.

"Count Karolyi came to this country not to seek asylum," as certain papers have erroneously stated, but to be with his wife who was ill," wrote Mr. Castle. "When he was given his visa he agreed not to engage in political activities. The press and some of Count Karolyi's friends have apparently elaborated this into a promise that he will say nothing whatever.

"For example, as I pointed out to you during our conversation, there seems to be no reason at all why Count Karolyi or his friends should not answer the specific allegations made against him that he had misappropriated certain funds collected by him in the United States before the war.

"This could hardly be called engaging in political activities and certainly would not be so considered by the department."

N. H. WOMAN WINS LIMERICK PRIZE OF $25

Read the Rules for Competitors Carefully Then Get Your Pen

From the far recesses of New Hampshire comes today's limerick laureate.

For Mrs. A. H. Marshall of Weare, a happy rhyme has brought $25 a line.

Hers was, in the opinion of the judges, the best line of the day's contributions. That was last Friday's limerick. Is there any reason why your last line for this Friday's limerick shouldn't gain you today's $25 award?

Everybody's got the talent for this simple, fun-making game. All you need besides the wit is the application.

Get the rhythm of the first two lines. Mull over the rhyme of the last word of these lines. Hit upon another word rhyming with them, and then think up a happy thought with this word dangling at the end. All left for you to do is to swing into the stride of the thing and jot down that clever last line.

IT'S GREAT FUN.

It's great fun, if you make the most of it.

Don't miss filling out the missing line of any one of these fascinating, merry jingles. And why should you, with a $25 reward staring you in the face every day? Vacation days are not far away and here's a chance to feather your recreation nest.

Twenty-five dollars every day for that last line, with fifteen $1 runners-up in the wake.

You are only limited to seven last lines, one to be written on the blank form and the other sextet on a sheet of paper containing your name and address.

Make these lines happy, snappy and funny and thus write your own ticket for that daily $25 giveaway. Strut out your stuff and the reward is yours for the moment's diversion.

OBSERVE THESE RULES.

Read the appended rules, get the lilt and go the limit:

1—Mark the number of the limerick you are competing for on the lower left hand corner of the addressed envelope.

2—Be sure to have your daily contribution in before midnight of the third day of publication of the particular limerick or the envelope containing it posted before midnight of the second day.

3—Seven last lines for each limerick are permitted you, one on the blank form provided and the other six written neatly and legibly on a sheet of paper.

4—All winners received will be announced a week later than the day of publication.

5—The judges, editors of the Boston Evening American, will pass on each "last line" on its merits as a fitting completion of a limerick. In the event of a tie, the limerick neatest in execution will have so much in its favor when the winners are decided.

6—A condition of entry in the contest is that the contestants must abide by the decision of the judges as to winners as final.

7—All "last lines" should be addressed to the Limerick Contest Editor, Boston Evening American, Winthrop square, Boston, Mass.

FIRE MENACES PORTLAND'S WATERFRONT

Low Tide Hampers Fighting of Blaze Fanned by High Wind

Portland, Me., Feb. 27.—Portland's waterfront was endangered when fire today swept through the repair and carpenter shop of the Pocahontas Fuel Company on Long Wharf and the Portland Machinery Exchange located at the head of the dock, causing damage estimated at $150,000.

A general alarm was sounded. Pumpers from Fort Williams and South Portland gave aid, but were hampered by low tide.

The repair shop and the Portland Machinery Exchange were destroyed. In the latter structure the marine engineering firm of Howard & Horn will be the heaviest loser.

Fanned by a high wind showers of live embers were swept over the roofs of other buildings in the vicinity. The cause of the blaze has not been ascertained.

WILSON MOVES TO PADLOCK SOUTH END SALOONS

Police Commissioner Herbert A. Wilson today started a crusade to close up four stores on Shawmut avenue and one on Compton street, South End, as liquor unisances.

Records show that from nine to sixteen convictions have been obtained at each of the addresses, although in the majority of cases the defendants were different.

Commissioner Wilson instructed his secretary to get in touch with the Federal authorities, in the hope that the Federal Court will recognize State convictions and permit the use of the padlock law.

Woman, 62 Years Old, Saves Dogs From Drowning

New York, Feb. 27.—How a sixty-two-year-old woman, Mrs. James Donnet, braved the icy waters of Woodlands Lake, at Irvington-on-Hudson, to save her seven dogs, was related by neighbors.

She discovered her dogs struggling in the water. They had broken through the ice. The aged woman rushed to their aid, but the ice gave way and she, too, found herself in the water. After lifting the dogs to safety, two of the dogs attempted to save their mistress.

ALGIERS VISIT BY PILGRIMS TODAY

Party Especially Interested Because of Lecture by Rev. Fr. McGlinchey

S. S. Ohio, Feb. 27 (By Radio).—Regrets at the brief stay at historic Gibraltar were overwhelmed today by the expectations of the Boston Catholic pilgrims to Rome of their scheduled visit to the semi-barbaric sights of Algiers today.

Mass was celebrated as usual this morning and after breakfast the voyagers lined the rails for the first glimpse of the northern African shore as the ship plowed through the blue waters of the Mediterranean.

The stay in Algiers was to be limited to the day, but the pilgrims were prepared to cover much ground because of a lecture delivered by the Rev. Fr. McGlinchey, to whom the city is familiar.

London, [illegible].—The vessel in Pacific liner Montlaurier, which was reported lying off Roche's Point, [illegible] damaged [illegible] gear, was released early this morning and she had succeeded in rigging an auxiliary steering gear and was proceeding to Queenstown in tow of the Dutch tug Zwart Zew.

VETS PRAISE AMERICAN CONCERT

Disabled Ex-Service Men at West Roxbury Hospital Vote Thanks

A word of nine letters meaning what the World War veterans at West Roxbury Hospital called the third semi-monthly entertainment arranged for them by the Boston Evening American. That's it—"Humdinger!"

THANK AMERICAN

And to express their satisfaction at the long and classy show which took them away from their cross word puzzles for an afternoon the "vets" extended a vote of appreciation to the American, to eighteen talented artists, and to Victor Morris of the Marcus Loew's organization, who helped make the affair as good as the veterans said it was.

The Town Taxi Company provided transportation for many of the artists, in order to do its bit to bring sunshine to the hospital.

Lambert Brothers' Orchestra, regular State Theatre Ballroom players and popular radio favorites, numbering twelve members, made a smash ing hit. Archie Lloyd, who has much to do with introducing Irving Berlin's songs in these parts, and Neil Cantor, his accompanist, captivated their audience of 200 veterans both by their manner and music.

"OFFICER HYMAN" SHINES.

Since the "vets" couldn't go to the Orpheum Theatre, "Cecilia Weston & Co." and "Officer Hyman," two of this week's acts, brought the Orpheum stage to West Roxbury.

Louis Hyman appeared in his regulation uniform of the New York police force. There are a lot of actors playing cop roles, but few can act them like Hyman, because for twenty-five years he was one of "the finest."

A successful act at a benefit performance just before he was retired, three years ago, won him a place on the vaudeville circuits, and he has special authorization from Police Commissioner Enright to wear his former hat, shield and other insignia.

The program:

Lambert Brothers. State Theatre Ballroom Orchestra — Selections, Just Like a Beautiful Story, Charleston Cabin, Old Farm Faces, with "Happy" Stanley singing, June Night; Banjo speciality, Irish Reels, by Lambert brothers; I love Her, comedy song, by "Happy" Stanley San.

Archie Lloyd in Irving Berlin's latest numbers, accompanied by Neil Cantor: Tramp, Tramp, Tramp; Show Me the Way, Can't Your Friend Get a Friend for Me?; Hot Tamale, Mollie, Charlie My Boy, by request, and other request numbers.

"Officer Hyman," Orpheum Theatre vaudeville act, by Louis Hyman, sparkling songs and reminiscences of an ex-New York cop.

"Cecilia Weston & Co.," Orpheum Theatre Act, songs and piano solos by Cecilia Weston and Marie Franklin.

Lambert Brothers' Orchestra. Blue Sky Blues; Yes, Yes, in Your Eyes; No Wonder; The Only, Only One, and request numbers.

"THEY'RE HUMDINGERS," SAY VETS

Found Dying in Road

Greenwich, Conn., Feb. 27.—George Briggs, who was divorced by his wife a fortnight ago, was found in the highway near his home and died at the Greenwich Hospital later from a bullet wound in the head. Beside Briggs were a revolver and a mirror.

BELGIUM PLANS NEW GENERAL FINANCING

New York, Feb. 27.—Bankers who act as fiscal agents for the Belgium government in the United States said today a loan bill now before the Chamber of Deputies probably was designed to give the finance blanket authority to negotiate for new financing. Belgium's current financial requirements were satisfied by the flotation of a $50,000,000 bond issue here in December, they asserted, and no negotiations for another loan have been undertaken.

KELLOGG INTERESTED IN LATIN AMERICA

Washington, Feb. 27.—Ambassador Frank B. Kellogg, the Secretary of State designate, who arrived here from London, made a round of calls on government officials today, during which he renewed acquaintances with former colleagues in the Senate and was introduced by Secretary Hughes to the desk he will occupy at the State Department beginning March 4. Mr. Kellogg told the newspaper men that for the time being he could make no pronouncement regarding his approaching service in the State Department. Pressed for a statement, however, he recalled that he had been a member of the American commission to the Santiago conference and would take with him into the Cabinet a keen interest in the affairs of Latin-America.

CALL FOR TRAINING CAMP RECRUITS DUE TONIGHT

The campaign for the enrolment of the 3,000 quota for this year's citizens' military training camps in the northeastern district will be opened officially from this city tonight, when Pierpont L. Stackpole, civilian aide to the secretary of war, will issue a call over the radio to eligible New England candidates requesting them to file their names as quickly as possible.

More than 1,000 candidates already have been accepted for the courses. Suffolk county leads with over fifty per cent. of its quota enrolled, and officers said that indications point to the breaking of all previous records for attendance at the various camps throughout the country this year.

NEW JAP LAND LAW SUBMITTED TO DIET

Tokio, Feb. 27 (A.P.).—The government has submitted to the Diet the long-contemplated land ownership bill. The measure is reciprocal in principle, forbidding title to nationals, the land laws of whose countries exclude Japanese from ownership. The bill is an amplification of a dormant law and extends its provision to the external possessions of Japan.

CATHOLIC PASTOR DIES IN SOUTH DEERFIELD

He was a native of Worcester and a graduate of Holy Cross College. He had held pastorates in Worcester, Southboro and Millbury being transferred here in March, 1924. He had been in the priesthood for forty years.

STORING VITAMINS

The average healthy person stores up within the body several days' supply of essential vitamins. This explains why a well-nourished person of any age is less susceptible to germ-infection than those who are malnourished.

Margaret Meadows married Will Lee at seventeen. His dissolute habits soon made her miserable. The night he raised his hand to his two-year-old child in a drunken rage she slipped from his home with her baby. Margaret supported her daughter by teaching school in several villages, finally settling in Fairdale, where she met Andrew and they fell in love. But he was tied to an invalid wife and Margaret refused to let him leave her. Nora, at seventeen, fell in love with Dane Herrick. Andrew was killed in an auto accident. Nora met Maxwell Reed, who made love to her. Margaret died and Nora was left alone. She plunged into a fast set of flappers. Dane upbraided her for her association with Max. They are married and Nora finds her troubles beginning

BUT between the acts she grew uneasy and sent him again and again to the phone When it was 11 o'clock and the play not yet ended she was on the verge of tears and finally put a trembling hand on his arm: "Please—let us go, Dane We can imagine the rest."

She made him drive with reckless speed over the curving Corbett road The fog was opaque and blinding, but they dashed on

When they reached home the baby was sleeping He hadn't stirred in their absence. She dropped on her knees by the crib and would have wakened him with her laughter.

Dane led her away. He said to her with a quiet [illegible] one: "When you give him more than he needs, you give him less than is right, Nora Lee." He took her hands and looked at her anxiously

"For seven months you've been pushing me into outer darkness. Do you know that? Sometimes I feel desperate enough to go."

He looked so very young and boyish—so hurt and eager that she winced. "Oh, you don't mean this, Dane

"Yes—it's true."

"Didn't I have to do what I did?"

"No—not by one-half. Haven't you love enough, Nora Lee, for the two of us? You see, I want my share. And I mean to have it."

She put her face against his shoulder when he slept that night, and cried. It seemed to her that she had two children not one, and it was not right to defraud the first, because of the second

"A woman today is a pitiful object. The more worth while she is, the more pitiful." Ida Burnett hurled her bomb into the teeth of the eight women sitting about the tea table. She could always be counted on for a nice, amiable diversion like this

Hester Crawford she who had divorced her husband a good man but boring and was now engaged to a fascinating actor, smiled dreamily "Anyone who allows herself to be buried alive, Ida, is pitiful Your definition of worth while means a woman too dumb to revolt; too sheep-like to run from the herd and find a new field

DARING STOP OF RUNAWAYS

Clinging with one hand to the bridle of the off horse of a runaway team, Patrolman Harold Bailey of Station 6 brought the animals to a stop after he had been dragged 100 yards on Broadway, South Boston, today.

Bailey's act, according to eye-witnesses was one of the most courageous they had ever seen and was performed under the handicap of a uniform overcoat which he carried on his left arm

The horses, attached to a loaded ice wagon were standing on Broadway in front of a grocer store the driver Vincent Mutzer and his helper being in the store

Frightened by an automobile, the horses bolted and tore down Broadway which was well sprinkled with traffic

Several men ran out into the street with the intention of attempting to stop the frightened team, but the horses sped by

STONEHAM AND CO-DEFENDANTS ARE ACQUITTED

New York, Feb. 27—A Federal jury today acquitted Charles A. Stoneham, Ross F. Robertson and Lemuel D. [illegible] of charges that they used the mails in a conspiracy to defraud stock market investors.

Stoneham is president and chief owner of the New York National League Baseball Club and has racing interests in Cuba

A Federal indictment charging use of the mails to defraud was returned January 11 1924 against Stoneham, his brother, Horace A. Stoneham, Ross F. Robertson, his brother-in-law and former partner, Leo J. Bondy, Stoneham's attorney, Edmund D. Dier, former head of the defunct firm of E. D. Dier & Co., brokers, Fred Andrews, Bernard A. Andrews and August F. Stroh employes of Dier.

They were charged with transferring customers' accounts of nearly $5,000,000 to the Dier Company, in 1921 knowing the Dier firm's affairs were in bad condition. Shortly after the transfer the Dier firm failed for $4,000,000. The government charged Stoneham with sending a form letter to his customers recommending the Dier firm as "reliable."

The defence introduced testimony to prove Dier was solvent at the time of the transfer.

On February 3 the court directed verdicts of acquittal for Bondy and Bernard Andrews, and on February 25 directed the acquittal of Horace Stoneham, Fred Andrews and Stroh

Another Federal indictment charging perjury in connection with his relations with the defunct E. M. Fuller Company is held against Charles A. Stoneham, who has also been made defendant in numerous suits brought by customers whose accounts he transferred to Dier & Co.

MALONEY BREAKS INTO FIRST 5 HEAVIES BY BEATING ROJAS

CHILEAN WAS RATED FIFTH BEST BY RICKARD

By JACK CONWAY

Over in South Boston, warm Celtic hearts beat rapidly at sight of this twenty-one-year-old heavyweight sensation. And so it is all through New England where for years sporting fans have hoped that another John L. Sullivan would some day spring up from among our fighting sons.

Maloney, recently rated as the world's ninth leading heavyweight by Tex Rickard, proved he is entitled to even higher ranking when he gave Quintin Romero Rojas, holder of fifth position in Rickard's list, a terrific beating at the Commercial A. C.'s show at Mechanics building.

Maloney scored three crushing knockdowns. Twice did Rojas hit the canvas in the second round, first taking the benefit of the count of seven and later taking the count of three. Once in the third round did the huge form of the Chilean champion drop to the canvas as a result of the mighty driving power of one of Maloney's fierce punches.

Maloney would probably have knocked Rojas out if Harry Kelley, his chief second, had released his hold upon the flood gates that held back the warm Celtic blood of South Boston's favorite son.

HELD MALONEY BACK.

Kelley, wise counsellor, capable handler of champions, held Maloney back. He feared that due to the lack of experience—it was only Maloney's fourteenth bout as a professional—he might fight himself out and fall a victim to the ponderous punches and determined assault of the silent man from the Andes.

It proved good judgment as Maloney carried each of the ten rounds. Rojas only counted with a few clean punches.

The bout had all the color and setting of a championship affair. Mechanics Building was jammed to capacity. Thousands stood behind the floor seats and in the balconies.

Rojas was introduced first and he received a good hand from the [illegible]

Then Maloney was introduced. And the very rafters of the building shook as the fans made known their desire to see Maloney win. Maloney looked an even more perfect athlete than Rojas. His body and arms showed great physical development. His lips were parted in a smile, perhaps in anticipation of the victory he felt sure he was going to win.

After instructions from Referee Johnny Brassill, the bell sounded and the battle was on.

The men went into a clinch. Maloney then drew away and drove his left to the jaw. The South Boston youth was boxing cautiously while the South American was trying to get to close quarters.

Maloney started boxing at a faster clip in the second frame.

Meanwhile Rojas kept driving forward, intent upon getting to close quarters where he could do effective work with his right hand uppercut and his illegal "rabbit" blow, which was delivered to the back of the neck and at the base of the brain.

Suddenly Maloney shifted his attack to the body and doubled Rojas up as he drove a right-hander to the body.

The Latin blood in Rojas' veins cried out for quick revenge.

ROJAS HITS CANVAS.

Rojas dropped to the canvas with a heavy thud. His brain was in a whirl.

At the count of seven he struggled to his feet, fearful lest he should be counted out beore he was able to resume battling.

Maloney was over eager to win by a knockout. His right hand whizzed forward, but missed Rojas' jaw by a wide margin. Two more rights also missed their mark. Then another right, high on the jaw, sent Rojas down again.

The great crowd was in an uproar. As Maloney battled grimly in an effort to end the contest with a single smash, the sound of the bell ending the round was completely drowned in the uproar. The men fought on for ten seconds after the bell before they were pried apart by the referee.

Maloney scored his third knockdown in the third round. He had driven Rojas back under a heavy attack to the head and body. One punch turned Rojas half way around. A left hook to the head then dropped the Chilean to the canvas. The latter took the benefit of the count of three.

Harry Kelley put on the brakes from the fourth round on. Maloney stood off and cut Rojas to pieces.

Jackie Clark ran out of his bout with Hambone Kelly. This gave Johnny Moore of the North End an opportunity to stop Benny Nelson of Lowell in three rounds in the semi final. Wop Manolian of the North End kayoed George Allen of Malden in three frames, while Joe Moore of Charlestown outpointed Joe Goss of the South End in eight sessions.

Mahan Introduces "Bulls-Eye" for His Pitchers

Coach Ned Mahan's baseball players will try out a new training scheme next week when they will introduce a regular circus side show affair. The pitchers will have a target of canvas with an opening as wide as the plate and as long as the distance between a batter's knees and shoulders.

"The Harvard authorities believe that such a target will prove better than having the pitchers work out with a catcher. A catcher will be behind the target to stop the balls that come through the 'bullseye.'"

JONES AND HAGAN CARRY BIG GALLERY AT FLORIDA

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 27.—Bobby Jones, national amateur golf champion, and Walter Hagen, British and American professional golf champion, carried a big gallery today when they started off the first tee at the B[illegible] Golf and Country Club in Pasadena-on-the-Gulf on the first round in the 72-hole West Coast open golf championship.

Eighty players, including George Duncan and Abe Mitchell, the British cracks, and practically all of the prominent American professionals took the field.

DOUBLE FOUL AS DELANEY K. O.'S FLOWERS AGAIN

New York, Feb. 27—Tiger Flowers, Atlanta negro middleweight, believed for a time last night that he had defeated Jack Delaney of Bridgeport, Ct., on a foul, yet Delaney won the bout by a knockout.

Flowers who had been aggressor in the early rounds, went down in the fourth from a short blow to the chin, but was up at the count of two. Delaney rushed across the ring to attack and he let his punch go. Flowers sank down, catching the blow on the shoulder. According to the rules, Flowers had fouled by going down without being hit and Delaney had committed a foul by hitting Flowers when he was down.

Referee Patsy Haley separated the combatants and sent them to their corners. Then ensued a discussion in which deputies of the State Athletic Commission argued that the foul was double, that one offset the other, and after four minutes of delay the fourth round was resumed.

Within a minute Flowers went down again from a right half uppercut and this time failed to rise—the second time that he had been knocked out by Delaney in two months. On the previous occasion the Bridgeport man scored his victory in two rounds.

Inside Golf

By CHESTER HORTON

Maker of 51 Golf Champions, "Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

The method of swing—the upright half swing—described in immediately preceding discussions is the only available effective swing for very elderly players. The knack is in stopping it short at the top of the back swing. The shaft should be just about straight up from the hands at the top of the back swing. How effective this is can be appreciated by the fact that "Chick" Evans, one of the finest of players, long ago discovered the value of the upright half swing, and students of golf often observe that he uses a peculiarly, for him, restrcited style of back swing. If the player of fifty years or more tries to go back the full length with the club he will immediately feel that tugging and tightness througout the body which destroys the smooth and rhythmic effect he will otherwise get.

WAMBY HURT, FAILS TO JOIN SOX PARTY

By FRED C. LANE

(Aboard the Red Sox Rattler)

Galion, O., Feb. 27.—Second Baseman Bill Wambsganss of the Red Sox did not join the Boston party en route to New Orleans when it reached Cleveland today.

Wambsganss injured his knee recently and will not go to the training camp for two weeks.

Coach Lefty Leifield, Louis Temple, Johnny Woods and John W. Scheiberg will join the party at Cincinnati this afternoon.

Five persons were in the advance guard that left Boston. They included Secretary Jim Price, Scout Hugh Duffy, Coach Jack Ryan and Pitchers Fullerton and Noonan.

At Springfield Joe Lucey hopped aboard, while at Pittsfield John Collins said "hello" to the gang.

John Kiefer, a hurler with a star record in the minors, answered the roll at Utica, N. Y.

Most of the Red Sox will be numbered among those present when the squad arrives at New Orleans late tomorrow night.

Training Camp News

NEW YORK—The second detachment of New York Yankees will entrain late today for the Spring training camp at St. Petersburg, Fla. The regulars in the party will include Joe Dugan, Waite Hoyt, Whitey Witt and Lou Gehrig. Among the recruits will be Tommy Mullin and Law Malone, former Eastern leaguers; Pitcher Al Raymond, from Paterson, N. J., and Infielder Tom McIntyre from Woonsocket, R. I.

• • •

PHILADELPHIA—The first group of Phillies and the second contingent of Athletics will leave tonight for their respective training quarters at Bradentown and Fort Myers, Fla. Only two players, Wilson and Betts, will be in the Phillies party. The Athletics party will include Dykes, Hale and Zigafoos. They will be joined at Baltimore by Bishop and at Washington by Lamar.

• • •

ST. LOUIS—Manager George Sisler and his vanguard of Browns went through their first workout at Tarpon Springs, Fla. Twenty men were in uniform.

A heavy fog at Stockton, Cal., prevented the Cardinals from practicing in the morning, but they made a good showing at batting practice in the afternoon.

• • •

CLEVELAND—With the first squad of Cleveland recruit pitchers preparing today to start for the Indians' Spring training camp at Lakeland, Fla., reports were received here from Hot Springs that several Cleveland veterans are suffering sore arms, due to strenuous training. A two-bout session on the ball field is sandwiched between runs in the morning and afternoon, with an hour in the hot bath completing the day's program.

• • •

NEW YORK—Manager John McGraw took charge of practice in the Giants' training camp at Sarasota, Florida, and came out of several conferences with the signed contracts of Jack Scott, Jack Bentley and Arthur Nehf, all pitchers. Frank Frisch is expected to sign his papers today.

The Giants will return to two sessions of practice daily on Saturday. At the Yankees' camp in St. Petersburg [illegible], the pitchers unleashed some speed and a few curves for the first time. Nick Cullop continued to hit far and wide and drew enthusiastic comments.

The man selling me these goods sold me on the condition that I should not advertise the name of the mill, because his mill's goods sell for three times the price I am advertising. Selling samples mean that they are made up to show at the opening. Fiery Mickey May Be Holdout, Though Nobody Knows; Bancroft Leads First Workout

By NICK FLATLEY

St. Petersburg, Fla., Feb. 26—Manager Davey Bancroft blew the lid off the Braves baseball season when he led a horde of pitchers and catchers for the first Spring workout.

Manager Davey, who has just arrived from Miami, [illegible] several million dollars, his [illegible] Europe and his gay life in the open spaces since then having made a new man of him, as they say.

The little shortstop is heavier than he has been for some time, hasn't any nervous [illegible] and seems to be ready for a good year.

The only [illegible] is [illegible] Mickey O'Neil. The fiery young man may be a holdout, though nobody knows.

He's a fiery young [illegible], if he's doing that same [illegible] it's hard to tell star athletes anything. O'Neil is a great catcher but his [illegible] few wild sports [illegible] season, these being enough to [illegible] managers chary of signing him [illegible].

Pitchers Benton and Graham did not arrive as per their schedules, but are undoubtedly somewhere on the trails.

Dick Rudolph was the ringmaster at the opening performance, taking very good care that none of the kids felt too strong and began putting on steam. The weather here is Summer hot and there is a chronic desire to cut loose, by the inexperienced.

The veterans of course just work off the softness. There are two real old timers among those present—Rube Marquard and Jess Barnes. The Rube, who was supposedly [illegible] out of the game last season, is a native of this village, and would be a good health ad for any town. He has cleaned up a [illegible] or so in the real estate game, so [illegible] he said to have more stuff now than any pitcher in baseball.

There are only three complete strangers in the array—young Hartsgrove from Hebron, Me., and Van Brunt, from Orange, N. J., pitchers, and Catcher Fred Schiller.

Van Brunt was hand-picked by Bancroft, who saw him play several games over on Long Island last Summer. The kid looked so good that Banny signed him to a contract.

Catcher Schiller is already considered a real find and the strategists will be severely disappointed if he does not make the grade on his first shot.

Double practice sessions will be inaugurated tomorrow, to continue at least until the rest of the troupe arrives a week hence.

NORTHEASTERN WINDS UP BASKETBALL SEASON

The Northeastern University basketball men will bring their season to an end tomorrow night when they play Middlebury (Vt.) College on the home floor in the Huntington Avenue Y. M. C. A. Coach Bond has seen the team through a good year and with this game some of the most outstanding athletes of the University will in all probability toss their last basket.

SCHAEFER'S RUN OF 400 MAKES HIM FAVORITE

Chicago, Feb. 27.—Jake Schaefer, former world's 18.2 balk line champion, made himself the favorite to take the crown from Willie Hoppe, defending titlist in the international tournament here, by a display of unprecedented form before which records have crashed. Schaefer and Hoppe are tied for leadership in the standing.

Erich Hagenlacher, the German cue artist, spent all of yesterday evening in a chair during his match with Schaefer, while the former champion broke all world's billiard records by running 400 from spot. The former mark of 384 was made by Welker Cochran in the 192[illegible] tournament.

The exhibition dwarfed a brilliant match in which Cochran defeated Kawakichi Suzuki, the Japanese, 400 to 113, in four innings, with a high run of 398.

The standings:

Player	Won	Lost
Hoppe	2	0
Schaefer	[illegible]	0
Horemans	[illegible]	1
Hagenlacher	[illegible]	[illegible]
Cochran	1	[illegible]

SEVERAL NEW MARKS LIKELY IN H. D. C. MEET

An event unique in the indoor track calendar, tomorrow's triangular track and field meet between Harvard, Dartmouth and Cornell promises to be one of the most keenly contested in the history of the competition. Harvard is a favorite but Dartmouth's athletes, due to the unusually mild weather, have been coming along in leaps and bounds and the Green may triumph.

Records are anticipated in several events. All of the running marks above the dash seem within the reach of the performers. Monty Colladay of Dartmouth and [illegible] Lunden of Harvard in the 300 yards, Bucky Bates of Dartmouth and Red Haggerty of Harvard in the 600, Soapy Watters of Harvard in the 1000, Byron Cutcheon of Harvard in the mile and Wizard Tibbetts of Harvard in the two miles are among the favorites who are considered capable of setting new records.

HAGGERTY CALLED TO ACCOUNT BY N. E. A. A. U.

[illegible] Farrell of Harvard was rather het up today when he learned that the N. E. A. A. U. track committee had asked Ellsworth Haggerty, a former Boston Latin School track star, and at present a sophomore at Harvard, to appear before them to explain why he did not run in the recent American Legion meet. Coach Farrell said that Haggerty did not run in the meet because he told him not to run.

OLD TIME SPORT STORIES

by GEORGE V. TUOHEY

Great Excitement Created in Boston by Ned Ten Eyck's Victory in Diamond Sculls in 1897

This is the fortieth of a series of articles on old-time athletes by George V. Tuohey, famous sports promoter, who has been prominent in athletics for thirty-five years.

No greater honor was ever accorded an individual athlete returning fresh from his triumphs than that given to Edward Hanlon Ten Eyck, when that youth returned after winning in the Diamond Sculls at Henley and was greeted by State, City and Federal officials at a public reception held in Faneuil Hall. It was the climax of a series of outbursts of enthusiasm that marked every move of "Young Ned," from the time he set foot on America's shores and wound up with a big welcome when he reached Worcester and was again really at home.

The Diamond Sculls, regarded as the Blue Ribbon event of the rowing world, had long been an objective of Americans but the event was so hinged with conditions, so expensive an undertaking that no Yankee could see his way clear to attempt the effort, until Ten Eyck did the trick so impressively that the English rowing authorities declared that he "rowed like a professional and he is not the kind of oarsmen we want to compete in the Henley."

Ten Eyck had won international fame by his defeat of Joe Whitehead at Lake Quinsigamond, the details which formed the basis of a previous article in this series.

There was considerable delay in getting the entry accepted, but the English stewards finally, but grudgingly, acted favorably and Ten Eyck, accompanied by his father James A., present rowing coach of Syracuse University, sailed to prepare for the event on the course.

There were eleven entries besides Ten Eyck.

The regatta took place July 14, 15 and 16, 1897. Ned drew a bye and therefore did not have to row in the trial. In the semi-finals he drew against Bluesse, the Holland champion, and they raced on July 16, Ned winning handily [illegible]. Bluesse found the going too stiff and "resigned" after traveling about a half mile. In the second semi-final on July 16 Ten Eyck beat his fellow-countryman Howell, who had defeated McHenry in the trial heat.

In the meantime Blackstaffe, all-England champion, had won his races, and this brought him into the finals with Ten Eyck, which was rowed about 6 o'clock the same day.

At the course Blackstaffe ruled a favorite, as the English are certainly loyal to their own when it comes to betting. The Americans, however small their number, took advantage of the situation and as a result made quite a clean-up when Ten Eyck romped home a winner over Blackstaffe and established a new record of 8 minutes 35 seconds for the Henley distance of one mile 330 yards.

When the news was flashed on the bulletin boards of Boston the joy of the crowds knew no bounds, and the feat was a topic of conversation by those in all walks of life. Immediately steps were taken to show appreciation of Ned's great work by an official reception, which, as stated, was held in Faneuil Hall, with Mayor Josiah Quincy as chairman.

By Martha Lee.

DELICACIES FOR THE INVALID

ONE of our members from Point of Pines who has a tendency [illegible] asks for suggestions [illegible] diet [illegible] with a physician [illegible] there I am glad to give a few general suggestions. Almost all physicians seem agreed that [illegible] treating rheumatism a moderate diet of simple well cooked foods is imperative, moderate exercise, cold water bath and an outdoor life are also strongly recommended. Tea and coffee and alcohol in all its forms should be avoided and beef is taboo while lamb and chicken are [illegible] [illegible] cereals, milk, eggs, fresh fruits and vegetables should form the principal part of the diet of rheumatic sufferers, meals should be eaten regularly and plenty of time taken for mastication. There should be no [illegible] pantry providing for the [illegible].

I also have frequent requests for cream soups and while there isn't room today to give you a great variety, I have a very nice oyster soup that is relished by most invalids.

RECIPE NO. 971.

OYSTER SOUP.

[illegible] cupful of oysters fine, put them in a sauce pan and bring slowly to the boiling point. Strain the chopped oysters and liquid through the finest possible strainer. Melt ½ tablespoon of butter add ½ of tablespoon of flour, blend well together and then add the strained oysters and liquid. Stir until smooth and thick. Add a small stalk of celery, a bit of parsley and a piece of bay leaf and one slice of onion to ½ cup of milk. Scald then strain and add to the oyster mixture. Season with salt and pepper and serve piping hot with croutons.

Since jellies are always an important item in an invalid's diet, I am giving you one that is nourishing

RECIPE NO. 974.

SHERRY JELLY.

Soak ¾ of a teaspoon of granulated gelatine in ½ tablespoon of cold water. Cook together in top of double boiler for 10 minutes [illegible] each piece [illegible] [illegible] tablespoon of sherry [illegible] and ½ teaspoon of beef extract dissolved in [illegible] cupful of boiling water, or 1 3 cup of strong beef broth. Add the dissolved gelatine and strain through double cheese cloth.

A very [illegible] dessert for the [illegible] is made in this way:

RECIPE NO. 973.

ORANGE SURPRISE.

Mix together ½ cup of orange juice, 2 tablespoons of lemon juice, 2 tablespoons of sugar and the yolk of 1 egg. Cook until mixture thickens. Soak ½ teaspoon of gelatine in ½ of teaspoon of cold water for [illegible] minutes and [illegible] the first mixture. Strain [illegible] and add the orange pulp [illegible] from the juice. Pour into molds, chill in [illegible] dishes, surround with [illegible] sauce made [illegible] egg until stiff adding 1 tablespoon of powdered sugar while beating constantly, and last of all adding [illegible] of tablespoon of orange juice and [illegible] teaspoon of lemon juice.

RECIPE NO. 972.

BEEF OMELET.

Dissolve ½ teaspoon of extract of beef or 2 tablespoons of very strong beef broth in 2 tablespoons of boiling water. Add 2 tablespoons of stale bread crumbs to the water and let stand until the crumbs have absorbed all the moisture. Beat the yolk of one egg well and add the bread crumbs to it. Then add ⅛ teaspoon of salt and a few grains of celery salt. Fold in the white of one egg beaten until stiff and dry. Heat ½ of teaspoon of butter in a smooth omelet pan, tilting the pan so it doesn't scorch. Turn in the omelet mixture and cook slowly until a delicate brown underneath. Dry the top of the omelet for a minute under your gas broiler. Fold over and serve immediately. Tomato sauce is excellent with this dish.

Much nutrition can be incorporated in the invalid's dessert. For instance there is real food value in the following

NORA LEE A Story of Flaming Youth

Heart and Soul of 1924 Flapper Laid Bare in Best Story by Author of "Chickie"

"Women are only pitiful when they are afraid of life and of love. Women look on love as a poison, men know that it is a balm—the great anodyn of pain, the breeze that wafts away weariness, the stereoscope that turns the [illegible] whiteness of life into a rainbow of color. Try love, Ida, and [illegible] life for womanhood will seem pitiful to you."

Ida blew smoke rings upward and sneered: "You know far too much of 'self,' Hester, to know anything at all of love."

"And you, one dear, have allowed yourself to become a mere [illegible] of a woman—a sort of feminine gesture—you've put all your emotions into a vacuum or worse—so you're scarcely competent to discuss the life and blood reality that is the woman of today. That woman isn't pitiful, but joyous."

Ida remarked quietly: "I'm not analyzing that [illegible] type. I said 'worth while' women, and I meant the type that starts out with a few ideals; the type that wants to play square; to give as much and more than she gets; to make the world a better and a happier place for her children. That woman is pitiful today."

"Why?"

"Because she's doomed to failure. The world is against her, the whole shabby fabric of modern society is against her. If she has even a little money she's committed to idleness, to gadding and tea-sipping and frenzied style chasing. Her one great vocation is the buying and wearing of clothes! What else do any one of us do? What else do we talk about, dream about, plan and conspire about?"

ANOTHER VIEWPOINT.

Marjorie Cole yawned: "I play golf; I also cogitate about having a child."

Nettie Ames struck in with a spark of fire: "Well, the world hasn't doomed me to idleness! I wish it would! I'd like a taste of leisure! With three small children to dress and feed I can't exactly say that I spend my time on a bed of roses. By the time I get them off my hands I'm as ready to drop in a heap as to go gadding."

Ida said imperturbably: "So it is pitiful, Nettie? The things we do for our children ought to be satisfying and uplifting. Those duties shouldn't be drudgery. But the way the world is arranged today child bearing and child raising is merely incidental—something to be sandwiched in between the mad rush of important things such as bridge playing and cocktail-sipping. Women have failed tragically in the big things of life. The world as it is organized compels them to fail. Therefore I say a woman is a pitiful object."

Nora Lee, always excited when Ida went on the rampage, and now doubly concerned, listened almost with pain. Ida was touching on chords that ached.

Slim Lines Again

It was five months since the night she and Dane had gone to the theatre. He had finally insisted on the hiring of a nurse girl. The little Dane was now a year old and beginning to walk. His mother was graceful and lithe again as in her girlhood.

At first it had been a bitter shock to discover that the baby could get along without her—that he was just as happy in her absence. But she had been compensated with the renewed sense of freedom, the feeling of lightness and exuberance dancing again in her veins.

It had been sheer joy to see the long, slim lines returning—to find her feet once more swift and eager. Going about again with this gay, carefree, irresponsible crowd she had the continual feeling of "playing hookey": of being on a stolen holiday. She was really delighted to have companionship again—she blithely overlooked shallowness and the crude jokes that used to irritate her hotly.

Hopeless

Now she said eagerly: "What should we do, Ida, to escape being pitiful?"

"One or two of us against the mob are hopeless. There are one or two women in the world who realize that the tremendous problems of life are in their hands to solve. The rest of us scorn our work. We allow it to be contemptuously called "women's work." We allow our husband's with their absurd little games of stock playing—buying and selling, cheating and scheming—to act as though theirs was the important role.

"We're ashamed of our sex. In our hearts most of us hate it. Other wise would a woman try to hide the fact that she is to have a child? Rather would she consider it a glory.

"Some day men are going to awaken and discover that they've acted like blind, [illegible] boys. They've grown up and continued to play craps and marbles. But all the exciting human problems, all the dramatic and stupendous experiments they've turned over to women. They've given them human flesh and blood; human hearts and [illegible] to work with. They've taken the most exquisitely [illegible] and turned women loose to mold as they would. But we [illegible] have proven too petty, too [illegible] for the job. [illegible] the great [illegible] adventure.

A World for Young

"And they wouldn't be sitting here on their plenteous avoirdupois, while their young goes scampering to hell or elsewhere as it sees fit. Instead they'd be making a fine world for these [illegible] to inhabit."

"When men [illegible] the job away from us and send us out to play with stocks and brick and mortar, they'll stocks and brick and mortar, they'll have so much fun doing it we'll be dying of envy and [illegible] to snatch back the work we've [illegible]."

In a tumult, Nora Lee [illegible] home. What an unpolite [illegible] Ida Barrett was! Because [illegible] a grudge against all the happy women in the world.

But Nora Lee wanted to reach home before her son was in bed. As she rushed through the living room she saw Ellen putting flowers on the table. The nurse maid came at 1 in the afternoon and left at 6.

Ellen said, smiling: "He's asleep, Mrs. [illegible]. And Bertha is gone."

"Already? It's not 6 yet. Why did you put him to sleep so early?"

"He was tired."

[illegible] the unwarranted tears, went in and stood at the crib. The little boy looked like his father, though he had Nora Lee's eyes and her hair. She was glad that she had only given him the best [illegible].

He had a battered black horse and wagon held fast in doubled arms. She leaned down and touched the closed lids and gently took the toy from him.

Nora Lee winced. Often she suspected that the boy loved his father better than he loved her. She wanted the two to worship each other, of course. But still she wanted to be first with both.

Was Love Failing

Just now she felt robbed and piqued and unhappy. Dane had no right to bring a nurse maid in here! Send her back to wanton idleness. It was selfish and thoughtless in him.

She was preoccupied during dinner. She wanted to talk about these vital things—take a long walk and come to momentous decisions.

But after dinner he sat at a desk and sketched. She had learned that he didn't need to work at night—that is—there was no hurry about the work. But when he had an idea it seemed to drive him and he was absorbed and indifferent to everything else while he developed it.

Now sitting across the room—watching the brown, cleancut head half lowered, she thought with a soft, cynical laughter. "I'm not very necessary to either! Not first with either!"

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

A Love Set

DRAWN BY STELLA THORNE

Stella Thorne
1925 Copyright by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

UP on the side of a daisy-starred hill, 'neath the blue of the sky flecked with snow-white clouds and the sun shining a blaze of golden glory all about—THERE one, no, Two, may rest awhile when the strenuous game of tennis is over.

On the court, love is a part of the score—on the hillside, love, especially if Cupid brings his own racquet and romps behind them—the REAL love set may be played.

But what is more man to do when she—instead of gazing at him—stares off across the hills with dreams alight in her eyes. Then it is, indeed, that he needs Cupid to help him make the love set complete.

SECRETS OF HEALTH

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.

Former President of the American Medical Association

YOU have often heard of certain sick persons being sent to the desert to get well.

These have so generally been cases of [illegible] that there has come about the widespread, but erroneous, impression that they are the only cases to the cure of which desert conditions are adaptable.

That this impression is erroneous becomes apparent the moment you give a little thought to the principle involved.

Of course the desert cure is a climatic cure.

The essential elements of climate to be found in the vast stretches of sand in the southern section of the United States, are Dryness, Light, Warmth.

Dryness is indicated by the rain fall, which, in the desert regions, varies from half an inch to three inches in a year, whereas in green field sections of the country, the variation is from thirty-five to seventy six inches annually.

The American Desert, including all the various deserts comprising it, is a sunlit land.

The sun's light brings with it the sun's warmth, sometimes, during the Summer, too much of it for comfort where the thermometer may go to 130 degrees F. But in breezy places, and most places are breezy on the desert, the temperature will vary from an average of [illegible] degrees F. in Winter [illegible] in Summer.

In many conditions of the upper air passages, not tubercular, there [illegible] inflammation [illegible] a chronic cough and tough mucous [illegible].

In certain other cases there is a chronic bronchial irritation.

In many people there has been a progressive accumulation of toxic materials in the system [illegible] rheumatism of the muscles and joints and of [illegible] and other [illegible].

In still another class there has come about a state of accumulation of poisons, largely from overwork, resulting in headaches, [illegible] depressions and nervousness which really means nervelessness.

In all these cases, you can readily see, three things are demanded, elimination, rest, re-creation.

Humid climates, smoky atmospheres, noisy cities, gasladen streets and Wintry cold, interfere with all three of these life restoring processes.

The radical change involved in going to the desert is the first stimulus to the restoration. The dry and warm air are remedies taken in by every breath. The vitalizing light comes with moments spent in the sunshine.

CORRECT MANNERS

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Which is the proper way for a young marriede lady to sign her name—Mary Brown Smith or Mrs. George A. Smith?

A CONSTANT READER.

DO you mean how she should sign her name to letters? "Mrs." should never be used in the signature of a letter. A married woman should sign a letter:

Yours very sincerely,
MARY BROWN SMITH.

If the letter is to a stranger or to a business firm, or to some one who does not know her formal name, she should put her formal name in parentheses at the left of the signature. Like this: Yours very truly
MARY BROWN SMITH,
(Mrs. George A. Smith.)

Will you permit me to talk to you about your letter-paper? It is not in good taste, for the color is altogether too vivid and the iridescent edge is not artistic. I hope that by now the supply is exhausted. Is it? For your good handwriting and your black ink, it would be better if you supplied a "frame" of white or gray, or very light blue letterpaper, plain and conservative, and therefore in good taste.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have a question regarding the acknowledgment of introductions. If Miss Smith were introduced to Mrs. Brown, it would be Mrs. Brown who would say, "How do you do?" would it not? Then what would be the proper thing for Miss Smith to say?

A READER.

BOTH Miss Smith and Mrs. Brown say, "How do you do?" when acknowledging the introduction. "How do you do?" is the accepted expression to use in acknowledging all introductions, and it is correct for everybody to use this phrase. Of course, it adds a distinct graciousness if you add the name to this phrase, if you are sure that you have heard the name correctly: "How do you do, Mrs. Brown?"

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I would appreciate your advice as to which of the following is correct: "Eat soup," "drink soup" or "take soup."

J. C.

TO "eat soup" is the accepted expression. You "drink" bouillon when it is served in boullion cups—that is, you may if you wish. One often uses "take" in the sense of "choose" "do you take soup?"

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am going to visit my husband's relatives and I am puzzled as to what to call them—by "Mrs." or "Mr." or by their first names. My husband's sisters and brothers are much older than I and I have never met them.

PEGGY.

EVEN if your husband's sisters and brothers are older than you, and even if you have not yet met them, they will, I am sure, expect you to call them by their first names. It is, such a close family relationship that it would seem very much forced and most unnatural for you to call them "Mrs." and "Mr." When your husband introduces them to you he will call you all by your first names, and this will make the first saying of the name easier and very natural. He should say most informally, "Peggy, this is Elaine," and "Peggy, this is Bob," since you are supposed to have heard much of one another.

Our [illegible] women in that generation could "women's rights."

[illegible] we women have [illegible] new freedom—we have [illegible]

But her new freedom has given woman a wonderful impetus to bring out the best in herself. Woman has [illegible] glorious [illegible] to realize [illegible] express herself [illegible] professional life, [illegible] work in [illegible] by her [illegible]

[illegible] marriage? Will they [illegible]

[illegible]

A few years ago every [illegible] said college education for women would destroy their attractiveness and drive away love. Yet time has proved that a large proportion of college women marry and make happy, delightful homes.

For illustration I need only mention the First Lady of our Land—[illegible] is a college graduate.

Education doesn't change the nature of woman but helps her to be more [illegible] successful than ever—more interesting and attractive in love and marriage, as well as in every line of work they undertake.

One day, Mrs. Smith, a friend of mine, went into her pantry and to her surprise she saw her little son standing on a chair trying to reach her pastry box which was kept on a shelf.

Mother—What are you doing here, Harold?

So Lucie and I strolled up to the house and climbed the stairs to my room. Just as we reached [illegible] the rang, and I hurried to answer it, with the feeling that [illegible] scheduled itself [illegible] be important.

CLOTHES GROW STRONGER BY WASHING IN SOAPINE

Remarkable Discovery Made at Brown University

The dirty clothes the heavy part of the wash—actually grow stronger when washed in Soapine. This wonderful feature was discovered recently by tests made at Brown. After tests were completed, Dr. Z. R. Bliss said: "The average of 820 tests showed that Soapine actually strengthens cotton fabric 11%." The longer they soak, the stronger they get.

The same ingredient which protects the fabric also kills germs—even typhoid. For general cleaning—floors, sinks, windows, etc.—Soapine removes the danger as well as the dirt. Genuine Soapine has a whale on the package. Get a package at your grocer's today or write us for free sample. Kendall Mfg. Co., Providence, R. I.

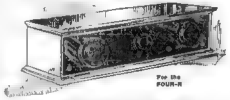
WHY DU PONT PANELS GIVE GREATER SATISFACTION

PYRADIOLIN IS NOT ONLY HIGHER IN RADIO QUALITIES BUT EASIER TO WORK AS WELL



This wonderful panel material called Pyradiolin was developed by Du Pont Engineers. When tested at the Cruft High Tension Electrical Laboratory of Harvard, it was proved to be exceptionally high in dielectric properties. It minimizes leakage and being non-moisture absorptive maintains maximum efficiency in wet weather or dry.

In addition, Pyradiolin has a lasting characteristic beauty and is as easy to work as a piece of soft pine, for it actually takes a wood-screw without splitting.

You can buy Du Pont panels at most Boston dealers in the proper size for the Four-R or in other stock sizes—also Du Pont dials to match. Each panel is packed with a cross-section working sheet. If your dealer cannot supply you, simply phone our Boston office.

THE FINISHED FOUR-R SET

OPERATION OF THE FOUR-R RECEIVER

By M. A. SIMMONS
Technical Radio Editor

After completing your Four-R set recheck the wiring carefully to see that no mistakes have been made. Mistakes may cost you the price of a few more tubes if you are not careful.

Many Four-R sets have been constructed and in all cases where the set was made correctly, excellent results have followed. A few [illegible] have been brought into the laboratory that did not work [illegible] same mistake was made in [illegible]. The first grid leak was [illegible]

When we say [illegible] it does not mean [illegible] should be unscrewed so far that it falls out. When the knob is way in tight, it will take about six to eight turns to completely unscrew the leak or resistance.

The first grid leak will then have about five turns unscrewed, and the second grid leak (detector tube) will have about one and one-half to three turns.

The last Audiohm unit can be adjusted to suit your own taste as this unit controls the volume of the last stage audio.

When turning the dial controls turn them very slowly. When a station has been received, note the dial readings in your Radio Atlas and Call Book. You will then have a permanent record for each station setting. With the dials on the lower end, they will read very nearly alike, but on [illegible] meters, they may be as much as ten degrees apart.

CLEANLINESS PAYS BIG DIVIDENDS

Sometimes when you think how little you have in paying investments you believe yourself a failure even though you may be rearing children who will be a credit and an asset to you in later life

To [illegible] that is an asset to the world in general is a fine [illegible] and it is an honor to you to have them later become useful citizens.

It does not mean that one must have much money to be on the right side of questions of [illegible].

Money is not needed to illuminate a face with the fire of human kindness. Your raiment may be spotless even though patched and old.

In these days sanitation is taught in matters that many would not understand, but it is not necessary to go to school to know that cleanliness is the biggest step toward a paying investment.

While it costs much money to equip your children for the competition they will meet in business, yet if you can imbue them with the right spirit you will have made a great investment.

DAILY SHORT STORY

A DREAM RECAPTURED

By Evangeline Weir

ALICE MILLER had left the gay world of which she had long been a part and taking her maid and [illegible] a [illegible] camp a [illegible].

[illegible] for her had proved a failure. [illegible] to make so much [illegible] its demands to [illegible] But she seen the [illegible] buried deep in her un[illegible] struggled to ad[illegible] to the conditions.

Wayne no longer loved her. The [illegible] but she always faced her [illegible] and worked them out [illegible] to be with the companion[illegible] to an open nature like hers. When she had but one life to live—she had but one—why waste it?

Two Years a Puppet

Together they could never accomplish anything; apart they might reconstruct their lives along new lines. For two years she had been a puppet in a puppet show and the mechanism was out of order. She was tired of society which demanded so much and gave so little.

"Life! Life abundant!" was the continual cry of her starved soul. She wondered if the great longing to live abundantly was selfish or a law of nature's striving for the survival of the fittest.

"I have just one life to live, and it belongs to me," she said one day as she wandered over the hills that were gorgeous in their death robes.

Found a Letter

"I cannot go back to my block house and with shams, smiles and tricks, play the game of solitaire until I die of loneliness and am buried in its ruins. I must act now and secure freedom for us both."

A knowledge of her limitations came to her with a crushing force as she walked on and on seeking to find an end which would lead her out of the tangled web. If one could only follow Nature into her deep sleep and awake again into a new heaven and a new earth each Spring, she felt that life would be worth living.

When she returned to camp, she found a letter from her husband among her mail. It was short and plain. He had been called to Europe for three months at least and hoped she would follow her own pleasure in all things

He had closed both their homes and made all the arrangements necessary. She was to consult his lawyer and he would advise or grant her wishes in all matter concerning her comfort.

"He cares and arranges for my animal comforts," she said bitterly. "For a time, at least, there is no problem to work out. I'll just live as I lived before Wayne came into my life."

Perhaps it was the freedom, the stimulating atmosphere of the Maine hills, the mystic silence of her own soul or a combination of them all; but the vivid spirit of youth returned and laughed at the problems she had thought beyond her skill.

She was ready to take up life where she had laid it down and go cheerfully on her way. She realized now that she and her husband had lived too close, made too many demands upon one another, and that the nervous system rebelled at the strain placed upon it.

It was all so simple when one was rested and could think and see clearly. Their home would no longer be a cold storage plant with a temperature which prevented development. It must have a nursery in it with pretty, dainty babies to make them forget the petty annoyances which had almost separated them.

Growing Cold

It was growing cold at the camp, the trees were bare, the birds had gone south; the lake gray and deserted; still she lingered. She loved to sit beside the bright wood fire in the rude little room and dream, to listen to the cheerful song of a cricket that had found a home under a loose brick.

She called it her fairy and scolded both maid and dog when they attempted to drive it away.

"Mary," she said one night to the maid, "we must go back to civilization tomorrow. You better go to bed and rest if you can. I shall stay by the fire until I am sleepy."

She piled the fire high with fragrant wood and seated herself comfortably among a lot of cushions to dream. The dog was uneasy and she scolded him several times for barking. At last, with his head in her lap, he was silent and watchful.

Into the drowsy silence of the dim room came a soft step recognized by the dog with a joyful bark. She bade him be quiet for she had lost it in the sudden chirp of the cricket.

Conscious of Presence

Suddenly she was conscious of a human presence and turned to peep into the shadow-filled space beyond the glow of the fire. Some one stood there waiting silently for her to speak. Her dark eyes widened and her lips parted softly; Wayne had come back to her! Wayne with the old lovelight in his eyes and the teasing smile on his lips.

She did not move—just waited for the great moment when he should hold her once more as he had held her in the old happy days when they had lived in an Eden which they dreamed nothing could disturb.

Alice watched him lay his overcoat across a chair and place his hat upon it. Then he dropped down beside her and reclaimed his own.

Cricket Sang

Outside the wind swept through the leafless trees and the water of the lake dashed against cold stones on its banks. Inside the fire burned brightly, a cricket sang on the hearth, and a man and woman and dog were so happy that they did not hear a door open and close.

"That trip to Europe has been a good healthy lesson to them both," the maid said, as she stole softly back to her room.

"I am glad I didn't kill that cricket!

"It's been so cheerful and comforting to us all. Even the dog got used to it. I think I'll put it in a box and take it back to town with us."

HERE'S Modern Marriage — with capital Ms. A fifty-fifty split, with Hubby buying the bacon, and Wifie buying the beans.

She's a stenographer and he's a shipping clerk, neither one of 'em making a large salary, but by pooling the cash and dividing the work in the apartment they've managed to live like kings—or rather, they DID manage until the baby came.

They're both supporting that baby—they're both paying the old lady who cares for it by day—so WHO OUGHT TO CARE FOR IT BY NIGHT? She says she's done her part by having it, and the least he can do is to walk the floor as may be necessary now it's here, and he says he's willing to do the square thing, but BABY TENDING ISN'T A MAN'S WORK!

How about it GANG? How can you answer a letter like that anyway? WHO OUGHT TO WALK THE FLOOR WITH THAT FIFTY-FIFTY BABY?

"DEAR MISS ROBINSON:

"As an advocate of the fifty-fifty mode of living my case ought to interest you, and you ought to be able to give me some advice. I will tell it as briefly as I can, going back three years to the beginning, for without the beginning you will not be able to understand our present trouble.

Employed by Big Firm

"At the age of twenty-one I was employed as a shipping clerk with a large concern who advanced their employes slowly, but not very substantially in the way of salary. My wages at that time were $90 a month and I was going with a young lady employed in the same place, she received a salary of $100.

"We were naturally attracted to each other from the first, and in spite of the fact that she was getting more than me we began going together. After a few months I was nearly broke, and saw I would have to cut it out, and she being a very fair-minded and intuitive girl, immediately guessed the reason, and put it to me in a nice way.

"She said, 'I value you for a friend, and I don't care whether you have money to spend or not. We will go Dutch treat after this, and we will both enjoy each other's company without either one going broke.'

"Now this was hard to take at first, I have always been used to treating the girl, but she was so nice about it I came to her way of reasoning. You understand that she was a girl who was pretty and popular and could have had other fellows who could do more for her.

"Well, after that it was no time before I was dead in love with her. You could not help it, she had such a wonderful disposition. We went together for a year, and in that time I had gone to another concern and gone up to $125 in the same line of work.

Marriage Years Away

"She was still getting her hundred. It looked like it would be years before we could get married, but we finally agreed to marry as we had gone together—that is, on a fifty-fify basis. I could not consider it on $125, but with the combined salaries of $225 we could get along fine.

"My wife's very practical and worked out a plan for us in our apartment, where I did certain things and she did certain other things, so neither one had all the work. I am not one who believes in a girl cooking and cleaning and everything and still working.

"We got along fine for the first year and part of the second; that is, until the boy arrived on the scene. Naturally my wife quit her job a while before, but with what we had saved we came through with the expenses all right, and when the baby was three months old she went back to work, on account of our being able to get an old lady in the apartment house to take care of her during the day. But now she is back at work, and we have our troubles, for the reason that our old schedule does not work good any more.

Too Tired

"This lady we have only takes care of the baby and does her washing, but does not get dinner or clean, so my wife has those things to do still, and she says she is then too tired to care for the baby at night, and I ought to get up with her at night and early in the morning. It is not so much that I mind the work, but I do not think that taking care of a baby is a man's work, and I do not think that I ought to be expected to.

"When I argue this she simply says that when I can earn enough so that she can stay at home, she will do it; but I leave it to you, Elsie, a young fellow without any particular trade is doing pretty good to make $130 these days, but it is impossible to keep a wife and baby on it, any way that we can figure.

"I would be very glad for your advice, but do not print my name. Understand I am not blaming my wife, who was very sick when our baby was born, and is not so strong as she was, but I would like you to get my side of it too, and besides it is hard for anybody to be up at night and still go to work in the morning, and I don't think that in a fifty-fifty arrangement like ours that I am getting quite a square deal.

"T. J. M."

Whadda you mean by "man's work," brother? If you're going to get choosey like that about your specifications, what's going to happen to your whole program? The day you started that fifty-fifty plan you lost your right to squabble over that term.

Cannot Refuse

There DOES seem to be a particular scope of work that belongs to a man, and another scope that fits a woman, doesn't there?

And yet if you let her do your work, how are you going to refuse when she asks you to do hers? Perhaps you should never have started this plan. Or, perhaps—and this is my larger hunch—the whole human race is going to be better, because, for a while, we're forced to go fifty-fifty on our jobs, with Tilly standing the gaff of office work and Tom hoofing it when the baby squalls. What do you think, Pals?

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. Medbury

THERE have been so many floods throughout the country this Winter that in some cities the pedestrians have had to throw their clothes away and buy steam heated bathing suits.

EVEN our guardian angels had to wear water wings.

IN lots of towns the floods were so high that a man couldn't go to bed without getting his feet wet.

WHEN a lodger wanted to retire he'd undress and tell the fish to move over.

HE had his two-year-old baby with him and used the gold-fish bowl for a crib.

ONE fellow who spoke with his hands, talked in his sleep. When he woke up the next morning he found that he had swum eighteen miles.

THE next night he tied an anchor around himself and threw it over the side of the bed.

NOT only that, but he wore a diver's suit instead of pajamas.

HIS wife said there was never so much water in the house since Andrew Volstead had been their guest.

SHE had some people spending the week-end with her and the house was flooded so badly that she had to go in the parlor and pump the water off the sofa.

FOOLING THE HOME FOLKS

By Les Conklin

THE greatest pieces of American fiction are the letters city people write to the folks back home. A woman may spend twice her husband's salary and make no impression with big-time society, but she can dazzle the old folks at home for the price of writing paper and a two-cent stamp.

If two or three retired bartenders drop in at the Shrubb's three-room apartment for a game of pinochle, the news is relayed home by Mrs. Shrubb like this: "Mr. and Mrs. Horace Shrubb gave a card party last Thursday at their mansion at No. 71 Schmalz boulevard. The distinguished Mr. Phillip McCann of the Dugan Street McCanns, was the guest of honor. Refreshments were served in the drawing room."

Urban residents writing back home may not stretch the truth, but they certainly stretch their imaginations. When in doubt, they give themselves all the breaks.

Mrs. Shrubb's big opportunity to give folks back home a thrill comes when she succeeds in palming off one of her daughters to somebody who hasn't known the girl long enough to know better. The gal may marry a jeweler's clerk in the Shrubb apartment with a street cleaner as the only witness, but the account that reaches the hometown newspaper reads like this:

"One of the big city's most stunning weddings of the century took place last week when Miss Garden Shrubb, formerly of Bungville, plighted her troth with Keene Karat, who is carving a name for himself in the metropolitan financial world as a rising diamond-cutter. The vista of the handsome studio in the Shrubb town house was resplendent with imported glass, china and silver. An altar was erected before the fireplace, of particularly beautiful lines and proportions. Five hundred guests, the cream of the city's society, were present."

BEDTIME STORY

Broadcast Daily Through WNAC

Why the Water-Beetle Is a High Diver

By Foxy Grandpa.

IT was one of those days in September which makes you think that Summer will never end and that Winter must be many months away.

Bobby, Bunny and I stood by a pond, and Bobby said:

"It doesn't seem possible that soon I will be skating on this very pond. Look how quiet and peaceful it is. There's nothing stirring."

But Bobby was wrong. For at that very moment we noticed disturbances on the surface of the water. A curious black object appeared. Then a popping noise was heard and with the pop and much kicking and wriggling the little black object disappeared.

"What was that?" asked Bobby.

"Something came up for air," answered Bunny.

"Let's wait and catch it," said Bobby. "The next time he comes up I'm going to grab him, whatever it is."

He waited—quite a while, too. Then the water bubbled and soon the little black object reappeared. Bobby plunged his hand into the water and seized it.

Quickly he dropped it on the ground and exclaimed:

"Water beetle."

"Sure," said Bunny, "and a fine one, too."

"Look at those hind legs," said Bobby.

"Yes," said Bunny, "and look at the whiskers on them. No wonder he can swim. I could, too, if I had such a pair of paddles."

"Why this looks exactly like the beetles we see on land sometimes," said Bobby turning him over.

"Just the same," said Bunny, "these fellows often leave the water and take a trip on shore or change their residence from one pond to another. But sometimes they have a tragic end for just such wanderings."

"What do you mean?" asked Bobby.

"You see," said Bunny, "these water beetles are great divers. And ofttimes when they are on land they will mistake the glass roof of a greenhouse for the surface of a pond, take a header and unconsciously commit suicide."

"Oh," said Bobby. "And yet they can stay a long time in water, too, and go around on the ground."

"Sure thing," said Bunny. "They have air chambers on their backs so that they can stay under water an hour and a quarter at a time."

"Let's throw this fellow in and see him dive," suggested Bobby.

"Why, look!" exclaimed Bobby. "He doesn't dive. Perhaps he does not want to."

"He wants to dive, all right, but he can't make a shallow dive," declared Bunny.

"Why not?" asked Bobby.

Because his coat is so shiny and smooth that the water is repelled by it—pushed off."

"Oh," said Bobby. "Let's try him higher."

Bobby lifted the beetle up high in the air and let him drop.

Into the water the beetle disappeared and we never saw him again.

"Perhaps that's what's the matter with my diving," said Bobby. "The next time I'm going to try the high diving-board. Maybe my skin is too slippery and that's why I always land on my tummy."

PARENTS AS HYPOCRITES

By Carolyn Lisberge

"NOW be sure not to tell the conductor how old you are," I heard a woman tell her little girl while they were waiting for a street car. "I'd have to pay full fare for you if he knew you were over six."

Thus to save three cents the mother permitted her child to see her act an untruth and evade a responsibility. What was the use of teaching her child not to tell lies after that incident? Or what good did it do to preach to the little one she must play fair with her playmates?

In the ordinary family circle ideals of speech, of demeanor, of morals are absorbed by the child just as surely as dry sand sucks in water. The child represents in his future growth what his imitative faculty has fed upon.

If he has lived where deceit is practised, where courtesy is an article of luxury, where people go about in their moral slippers—so to speak—where above all he notices that one code of conduct is practised at home, while quite another is publicly advocated, what must happen? The answer is simple—he does not act in accord with high standards when he has grown up.

Use McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets

Nothing like the wonderful vitalizing vitamines in Cod Liver Oil to help convalescing people to quickly get strong and well — everybody knows that.

But nobody wants to take the ill-smelling, horrible tasting stomach upsetting oil itself, so nowadays up-to-date medical men are ordering a tablet of Cod Liver Oil and it surely has proved a blessing to thousands of people who have been sapped of their natural strength after a severe illness, and especially after the grippe or a stubborn cough or cold.

Ask any regular druggist for a box of McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets. They cost but little, are sugar-coated and as pleasant to take as candy.

Skinny men and women take them to speedily put on plenty of good, healthy, solid flesh, and for this purpose they are so extremely good that thin men and women often take on five pounds or more in 30 days. As a matter of fact, your druggist will return your money if you don't take on five pounds in 30 days.

FINANCE

By B. C. Forbes

Which city in the United States has the largest proportion of income taxpayers?

Which city's harbor is making the greatest increase in foreign shipping of any port in the country?

Which city's building operations come next to those of New York and Chicago?

Which city is being rapidly transformed into a great stock yard centre?

Which city has taken the lead in developing an important new cotton growing section?

The answer is, Los Angeles.

* * *

* * *

We have been hearing so much about the troubles and travails of California, and especially Los Angeles, that it is refreshing to obtain the facts. J. Dabney Day, president of the Citizens' National Bank of Los Angeles, who has been visiting New York has taken pains, at my request, to furnish a wealth of specific information for readers of this column. For example:

King C. Gillette recently paid approximately $1,500,000 for the Sixth and Grand street corner, 110x140 feet, the record price ever paid for business property in Los Angeles.

Although Detroit nosed Los Angeles out of third place in building activities last year, Los Angeles thus far this year ranks third.

Thanks to its unmatched gain of last year, Los Angeles now stands sixth among the leading ports in the United States, having managed to squeeze in just ahead of its sister city, San Francisco.

* * *

What did the widely discussed hoof-and-mouth disease actually amount to in California last year? Only 2 per cent., of the cattle, Mr. Day states, were affected.

* * *

How little the progress and prosperity of Southern California were affected is indicated by the following comparisons of business conditions in Los Angeles:

1924 compared with	1923%	1922%
Retail turnover	plus 10	plus 34
Street car passengers	plus 5	plus 19
Bank clearings	plus 3	plus 41
Postal receipts	plus 13	plus 37
Telegraph revenues	plus 6	plus 30
Building permits	minus 19	plus 81
Oil production	minus 25	plus 67

* * *

Mr. Day added this important bit of news:

"No clearer evidence is needed of confidence in the future of Los Angeles and Southern California than that furnished by a wealthy and influential group of Chicago capitalists who, after a thorough analysis of business conditions in the Pacific Coast States, have recently joined with a strong group of Los Angeles business men in an important and far-reaching enterprise, namely, The Central Manufacturing and Stockyard District of Los Angeles.

"Already $4,000,000 has been invested, and present plans contemplate a total investment of $25,000,000. The live stock business of several Pacific Coast States is being focused in Los Angeles. The present and the planned factories and plants will be centres of distribution from the Pacific Coast territory into Mexico, South America, Hawaii and the Orient.

"To provide ample banking facilities, these interests have recently acquired a large block of stock of the $100,000,000 Citizens' National Banking Group."

* * *

Among the men interested are J. A. Spoor, chairman of the Union Stockyard and Transit Company of Chicago; John J. Mitchell and Arthur G. Leonard of Chicago; Eugene V. R. Thayer of New York; H. E. Poronto, who heads the Central Manufacturing District of Los Angeles; J. B. Leonis, Sr.; P. H. O'Neil, F. L. S. Harman and J. A. McNaughton of Los Angeles.

In 1923 the total production of cotton in Southern California, and that portion of Arizona and the Imperial Valley which constitute an important part of the trade territory of Los Angeles, was 10,000 bales, worth at today's prices $1,400,000. The same territory in 1924 produced 250,000 bales, worth $35,000,00. This production is to be enormously increased

* * *

Commenting on the fact that 21 per cent. of the people of Los Angeles pay income tax, indicating the greatest income per capita of any city in America, Mr. Day said: "Those who have moved to Los Angeles during the past few years have brought with them an average of $3,000, or possessions equivalent to that amount, per capita, and as approximately 100,000 people are moving into Los Angeles annually, this means the capital of Los Angeles is increasing approximately $300,000,000 per annum from this source alone."

* * *

If Los Angeles has achieved all this in a poor year, what is it likely to do now that it is getting back into its stride?

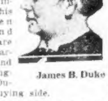
DUKE ON BULL SIDE OF BIG MARKET

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

Recently we mentioned the tobacco stocks as selling out of line with the rest of the market. Since that time a constructive factor in these issues has been the steady accumulation going ahead for the account of James B. Duke and his associates. It is interesting at this time, when Brookmire and some others are apostles of bearishness, to find Mr. Duke alongside W. C. Durant on the buying side.



James B. Duke

Tobacco Products' control was reported to have passed from the Whalen group to the Duke group. Many interpret this as bullish for the long pull, but n . so bullish for the short pull as if some of the old interests had not relinquished their holdings.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Trade Review in this week's issue will say regarding trade conditions in Boston:

While many favorable factors continue to operate to improve conditions, retail trade is quiet, and complaints of slow business are heard in many sections. Cotton goods, particularly print cloths, have been active, and some price advances have been made. Cotton yarns are moving in small volume, with quotations unchanged; the market is weak.

The opening prices of fancy lines of woolens have advanced somewhat more than the staple lines, and these numbers are moving at the outset somewhat better than the goods at the earlier openings. The wool market was very quiet during the week, but the outlook seems to be for steadier prices, and buyers are taking more interest. Worsted yarns are moving slowly, and although spinners are curtailing requirements prices are being maintained.

Conditions in shoe centres are unsatisfactory. In some quarters wage reductions are being proposed. Tanners are not particularly busy and the leather market is quiet. There is little interest in hides and skins and the market is weak. Tanning materials are slow.

Chemical prices are easier, but manufacturers are not purchasing to any extent.

Heavy building materials are improving and prices are firm. Paints are quiet. Demand for building lumber is moderate and quotations are being somewhat shaded. Contractors are very busy figuring, and look for active business in the Spring.

The general employment situation is favorable. The paper market is active, with prices tending upward; fine papers are in especially good demand. News paper is selling well and the call for chemical pulp is increasing. Importations are heavy, but supply on hand is moderate.

Textile machinery is quiet, but electrical supplies and radio specialties are active. During the last three weeks there has been a decided increase in automobile sales. Tire manufacturers report a good business, but automobile supplies are quiet.

BUILDING RECORD IS SET FOR NEW ENGLAND

Building operations for New England for week ending February 24 were the highest for the like week this century, as reported by F. W. Dodge Company. Comparative figures follow:

1925	$7,122,000	1912	$1,648,000
1924	3,319,100	1911	2,276,000

AMERICAN GLUE HAS INCREASED EARNINGS

Report of the American Glue Co. for 1924 shows net income of $408,181, compared with $211,911 in preceding year, $267,810 in 1922 and $546,110 in 1921. After all charges, depreciation, federal taxes and preferred dividends, final profits amounted to $242,549, equivalent to $5.55 per share on the 43,677 shares of common stock. This compared with $1.86 earned in 1923.

N. J. STANDARD TO SHOW $4 EARNED FOR COMMON

Financial district estimates Standard Oil Company of New Jersey will show net income of $100,000,000 for 1924, equal, after preferred dividends, to about $4 a share on the common stock. The trade considers this would be remarkable in view of depressed conditions in the 1924 oil industry.

JANUARY DEFICIT FOR B. & M. IS REPORTED

NEW HIGHS SET IN WALL ST. DEALINGS

Pan American B and Atlantic Coast Line were among issues to sell at new tops for the year in New York Stock Exchange trading, after a somewhat recessional start due to the raising of the rediscount rate in New York from 3 to 3½ per cent. Tobacco Products gained over 2.

The market developed a firm undertone during the morning, although a renewal of pressure against some of the pivotal industrials temporarily forced them below their initial quotations.

Special strength again was shown by automotive issues, which apparently are discounting the usual heavy Spring demand for motor cars. Jordan and Gardner Motors each advanced more than a point above Thursday's final figures.

Laclede Gas jumped 5 points to 148¾ and substantial gains also were registered by Savage Arms, Certain-teed Products, Columbia Gas and Loose-Wiles Biscuit.

The higher rediscount rate apparently was later construed as a bullish factor, on the theory that it reflected an increased demand for funds which, in turn, indicated business expansion.

Call money again renewed at 4¼ per cent, then went to 4½.

Warren Bros. Issues Jump to New Tops in Boston

Warren Bros. common jumped up from 44⅞ to 46¾ in Boston Stock Exchange trading today, thereby setting a new record high along with the company's convertible 7½s, which ascended 9 points to 149. Boston & Maine Classes C and D tacked on a point each at 37 and 56 respectively. Massachusetts Gas common was off from 73½ to 72½ in the initial hour. The majority of local issues sold unchanged. Edison Electric at 201¾ and New England Telephone at 104 were up fractionally.

American Woolen preferred gained ½ at 89⅞. Island Creek Coal lost 1½ at 133. United Fruit was down 1¾ at 216. Woodley Petroleum was unchanged at 6⅞.

With the lone exception of Calumet & Arizona, which was off ¼ at 51¼, all the copper stocks were sold unchanged from Thursday's final prices.

FOREIGN COMPETITION IN LEATHER FEARED

At the Central Leather Co. annual meeting President Brown said the export field for the company's products is practically negligible. "Europe can take care of her own needs, and demand in Eastern countries is small. The future of this company lies in the domestic market, the needs of which are ample for us to make a profit if we get our share.

"We foresee the possibility of competition here by European tanners, for if they produce a surplus of leather there is no other market in the world which offers better opportunities than the United States. If such competition comes, we will fight for a tariff, for the lower labor costs in Europe make possible leather production at one to two cents a pound less than here."

New York Curb

New York Curb was lower: International Petroleum 26⅝, off ¼; Continental Baking, "B" 27½, off ¾; Lehigh Valley Coal ctfs 45, off ¼; Childs Company 51½, off 1; Kelvinator 24⅞, off ⅛.

NEW ENGLAND'S GAIN EXCEEDS SOUTH'S

In the six months from the end of July, 1924, to the end of January, 1925, the cotton textile industry scored a remarkable comeback. In July the cotton mills ran but 60 per cent. full. In January machinery had been speeded up to 96.4 per cent. capacity.

In the recovery to date the New England mills have actually outstepped those in the cotton-growing States. On a percentage basis the Southern mills have increased operations 60 per cent., while the Northern plants have scored 77 per cent. The improvement in Massachusetts has lagged behind that of its neighboring States, being but 66 per cent.

The fact that the recovery in the South has not matched that in the North will be surprising to many. It is true that, based on a single shift of 55 or 60 hours a week, the South is running overtime, while New England is running about 80 per cent. full time on a 48-hour week in Massachusetts and 54 hours elsewhere, but the Southern mills have not generally returned to the two-shift basis of operations.

A cotton mill man says in this connection: "The Southern mills received a tremendous shock when the results of 1924 became apparent. They had a feeling that their advantages made them proof against any depression, but 1924 caught them napping. Most of them did not heed the warning given by rising costs and diminishing consumption and kept on running day and night. It seems they have learned a lesson, and they are going slowly now. This will benefit the entire industry."

ALL DELIVERIES OF WHEAT GAIN SHARPLY

All deliveries of wheat scored sharp upturns in price in Chicago because of unfavorable crop reports from the Winter wheat belt. Opening prices, which varied from unchanged figures to 1¼c higher with May 194¾ to 195¼, and July 167 to 167½, were followed by numerous rapid changes and then by a rise all around to more than two cents above Thursday's finish, July touching 169.

Corn, after opening ⅛c off to ½c up, May 132¾ to 133, underwent a moderate setback and then made good gains. Oats started at ⅛c decline to ¼c advance, May 55¼ to 55½. Later all months showed something of a rise.

Ony xHosiery, Inc.

Report of "Onyx" Hosiery, Inc., for 1924 shows net loss of $159,142 after depreciation, interest, etc. This compares with net profit of $711,245 after charges and Federal taxes in 1923, equal to $2.98 a share on 160,000 shares of no par common after allowing for preferred dividend requirements.

RAW MATERIAL IMPORTS ARE GREATER

Washington, Feb. 7.—Sharp increases in imports of raw materials during January compared with the same period last year were shown today in commerce department figures.

For the month 43 per cent. of the imports were of materials intended for conversion in American manufacturing establishments while a year ago such materials constituted 36 per cent. of the imports.

Figures with comparisons for January, 1925, follow:

Imports—Raw foodstuffs, $38,066,000 against $32,584,000; foods ready for consumption, $32,336,000, against $38,202,000; raw materials for use in manufacturing, $147,597,000, against $106,434,000; manufactured commodities, $62,813,000, against $57,605,000; partly manufactured products, $63,104,000, against $58,044,000.

Exports—Raw foodstuffs, $25,873,000, against $13,810,000; foods ready for consumption, $54,044,000, against $59,315,000; raw materials for use in manufacturing, $168,194,000, against $132,848,000; manufactured commodities, $133,059,000, against $127,826,000; partly manufactured products, $58,271,000, against $54,619,000.

RECORD SUGAR CROP LIKELY

The world production of sugar for the crop year of 1924-25 will be 24,800,000 short tons of 2,000 pounds per ton, according to the estimate announced by the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

If this estimate is borne out when the crop finally is harvested, sugar production will have broken all records. It will exceed the last year's crop by nearly three million tons and the crop of 1922-23 by more than four million tons.

Most of the new crop is cane sugar. Cane is estimated at 16,300,000 tons, and beet at 8,500,000 tons. Last year beet sugar production was 5,500,000 tons, and cane production about 16,500,000 tons. Thus for the present year beet sugar gains, while cane production stands still. Beet production has been gaining faster than cane for the last few years.

While large sugar production should make for low prices, there is the consideration that this country, with prosperity in prospect, will increase its consumption, and that European consumption also will gain with economic stabilization in Europe.

MOTOR BUS INDUSTRY IS GROWING RAPIDLY

Growth of the motor bus industry is emphasized by Edward F. Loomis, secretary of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, who states much additional capital is being placed in manufacturing facilities and it is expected 16,000 motor buses will be built this year against 12,000 in 1924. Owing to orders from the West and Middle West many truck manufacturers, he said, were now working under larger production schedules than normally.

Pryor, chairman of the Remington Arms Co., and Ernest Stauffen, Jr., vice-president of the New York Trust Co. A new issue of preferred stock also is contemplated.

BAD INFLATION NOT PRESENT, SAYS MOODY'S

"Inflation of the kind now talked about seems to be a harmless thing under a bad name, a sheep in wolf's clothing. Genuine inflation might be defined as some financial or price condition bad enough to absolutely necessitate forced liquidation in the future. This kind is not present," says Moody's.

"Talk of the Federal Reserve Board raising rediscount rates to check the advance in commodity prices looks like nonsense. The board has never constituted itself the guardian over commodity prices, and rediscount rates have been changed always, so far as we know, for strictly banking reasons.

"Sometimes in great bullish years the stock market rises too fast in January and February; then sells off in the Spring or Summer, and finally goes higher than ever in the Autumn. This occasionally happens in the greatest boom years, and if it should happen this year one might rejoice at the opportunity to buy at recessions.

"Silk manufacturing companies promise to do much better this year than they did last. There are signs of a better demand for silk goods, and the raw material inventories were accumulated at low costs.

"The average yield of 118 representative stocks at the peak of February 11 was 6.18 per cent., as compared with 6.35 at the high point of December, 1924, and 6.14 per cent. at the highest point of 1923."

RADIO CORPORATION'S ASSETS UP $12,000,000

Pamphlet report of the Radio Corporation of America for 1924 reflects the great growth of the radio industry. The company's total assets expanded to $58,292,350, an increase of nearly $12,000,000 over the year before.

Rub Away Baby's Colds

A Boon to Mothers

Mothers everywhere who realize the danger to delicate little stomachs of too much dosing appreciate the value of Vicks in treating croup and children's colds.

With Vicks there is nothing to swallow—you just rub it on. The body heat releases the ingredients—Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Thyme, Turpentine—in the form of vapors which carry the medication directly to the nose, throat, bronchial tubes and lungs.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed through and stimulates the skin like a poultice or plaster.

Colds go overnight, croup is generally relieved within 15 minutes.

Single Head Gets Results

President Coolidge Knows That

Captain Rickenbacker, crack American flier, with the top record for bringing down enemy planes in the late war, testifying before the Congressional Committee, said many interesting things. When asked if he had been fired at by anti-aircraft guns while flying over German lines, he replied that he was being fired at all the time, but that neither he nor his plane was ever hit.

Anti-aircraft guns are absolutely useless against airplanes. Only an airplane can bring down another airplane.

Mr. Rickenbacker, who KNOWS about flying and fighting in the air, and in civilian life is a level-headed business man and industrial organizer, gave this advice to the committee:

> "I recommend the establishment of a separate air service as the best means of protecting this country in the air.
>
> "NO MATTER WHAT YOU APPROPRIATE FOR THE AIR SERVICE, UNLESS YOU HAVE A SINGLE HEAD, YOU WILL NEVER HAVE AN AIR SERVICE."

That is the truth, and every man who knows anything about organization knows it. You may have many assistants working well under one head. A centipede with a hundred feet and one head can go where it wants to go. But if it had two heads, one at each end, the hundred feet wouldn't take it anywhere.

The first step in remedying the disgraceful condition of national danger, as shown in this Congressional hearing, is the establishment of a separate department of fighting aircraft headed by the ablest man available and, of course, under the control of the President as commander-in-chief of the army and navy.

To know what happens when competing heads struggle for control, in any important branch of the service, recall what Brigadier-General Mitchell said about conditions he found in the Hawaiian Islands.

He testified that the navy and army heads in the Hawaiian Islands were not on speaking terms with each other.

The army was planning to take possession of Honolulu in ONE way, in case a war should come. The navy was planning to take possession of that same city of Honolulu in ANOTHER way, in case a war should come.

General Mitchell testified that those two officials of the United States army and navy would have used force AGAINST EACH OTHER in the attempt to capture that Hawaiian city. That's what you might call "close harmony."

Our Right to Isle of Pines

Senate Should Not Surrender It

The Cuban treaty which has been pending for so many years and which would give the Isle of Pines to Cuba is still unacted upon by the Senate.

That there ever should have been any doubt about our intention to claim the Isle of Pines is inexplicable, unless it is explained by the desire of powerful American tobacco interests to perpetuate their tobacco monopoly in the Isle of Pines.

This tobacco monopoly violated our anti-trust laws and would have been destroyed had the Isle of Pines come under our flag, but the tobacco interests trusted to their ability to perpetuate the monopoly, if the island went under the Cuban flag.

The facts relating to this charge would seem to be susceptible of ascertainment, at least in some degree, by the Senate.

The Isle of Pines belonged to Spain and it came to us along with all of Spain's other islands in the Caribbean, Cuba alone excepted, to indemnify us for our outlay in lives and money during the Spanish War.

The Senate should not surrender what the treaty with Spain gave to the United States.

Easy Uncle Sam

Russia Seems to Possess Powers Lacking Here

Some ingenious gentlemen secured for themselves the naval oil reserves o. the United States. They still HAVE them. Slow courts and FAST LAWYERS make a good combination for those who seize government property.

Suppose the black bag gentleman had then been found in possession of the rich man's jewelry, turned over to him by the butler that got the $100,000. Would the butler and the black bag man stay out of jail? They would, in RUSSIA.

One Foolish Prince

That crowd, which does not represent German common sense, might interrupt its hochs with this question:

How does it happen, All Highest, that you and your long string of brothers went all through the deadly war without a scratch, while millions of young Germans were shot to death?

Since you talked so much of war and "the day" in peace, why did you not try a little of the war when the day came?

Cheering the safe and sound but thoroughly beaten and discredited Hohenzollerns disgusts sensible Germans. Unfortunately, it injures their case with the outside world. Such a demonstration for the preposterous and incompetent ex-Crown Prince seems to justify any harshness by the allies.

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

EVERY man believes in "eternal love"—for one woman after another.

• • •

Helen Rowland

Never lose your beauty sleep, wondering what a man means. When a man MEANS anything darling, he'll SAY it right out loud.

• • •

Love is that beautiful form of insanity which makes a man call a girl up over ten or twelve dollars worth of telephone distance, just in order to say, "Hello, how are you this morning?"

• • •

A wise woman may flatter a man a little—but a foolish one always idealizes him; and before she knows it, his head has outgrown his halo.

• • •

The average woman makes the mistake of trying to hold a man's love, like the steam-heat, by closing all the exits, and thus hastens its death by suffocation.

No man was ever so dazzled by a woman's beauty that he wanted to wear an eye-shade; but her brilliant mentality can make him blink and run for cover, almost very time.

• • •

There are as many kinds of love as there are automobiles; but a little flivver and a little flirtation that don't cost much and can be exchanged every Spring for new one, continue to be the most popular variety.

• • •

Doubtless, at least six hundred and ninety-nine women tried to remodel King Solomon, never realizing that NO woman ever succeeded in changing any man, from his eyebrows up.

• • •

Marrying after thirty is something like shopping after Christmas; a lot wiser and more sensible of course, but just a materialistic affair, with all the glamour gone.

• • •

THE RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis

FAR down below the withered grass, below the fallen leaves, away from sound of wailing winds of Winter as he grieves, below the chill and barren earth where snow is drifted deep, below the frost's white messages the seeds lie fast asleep. But some bright morn when March begins to roar around the world and Spring comes from the southland where her flags are never furled, the sun's warm rays will send their heat deep down into the sod to wake the rose and violet, the pink and goldenrod. Sometimes man's soul is like a seed, asleep in some dim place and only needs, to quicken it, loves potent, warm embrace. And when love beams how swiftly then the magic work is done, how gladly does the soul bloom out, a primrose in the sun!

WORDS OF THE WISE MEN

A man can no more justly make use of another's necessity than he that has more strnegth can seize upon a weaker, master him to his obedience, and, with a dagger at his throat, offer him death of slavery.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Birth Control.

Editor Boston Evening American:

All Harvard students do not believe in birth control—I include undergraduates, as well as graduate students. Might as well make the general statement that the U. S. A. favors birth control because the editor of a city newspaper pens a laudatory editorial on the subject, as to claim that "Harvard Students Believe in Birth Control" because the Crimson pipes a shrill tune to the effect that President Emeritus Eliot is all wrong when he condemns a comparatively small class of radicals who seek to steal from God the power over life and death, and from society the natural flower of life, which has always been the very essence of society.

What right has any individual to say who shall live and who shall die? If such be the right of man, will not murder, manslaughter, etc., cease to exist under such names, and will not any individual be safe from the clutches of the law?

Advocates of this system claim that by the poor class, birth control knowledge is most needed, and for them especially it will work the most good. They object to the number of insane, criminals and paupers who are thought to be the offspring of the poor class—they do not stop to consider that such conditions could be alleviated to a great extent by education, legislation and welfare work of the proper nature.

I sincerely hope that you can see your way to making known the fact that all Harvard students are not to be branded with the mark of "Birth Control Advocate."

YOU GET WHAT YOU PAY FOR IN ADVANCE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

ON some street cars there is the sign "Pay as you enter." It would be a good thing if that sign were pasted over every career in life.

For you get only what you pay for, and pay for in advance.

Things do not come to you, allow you to enjoy them, and then have you pay for them, but you have to pay for them first whether you enjoy them or not.

Many people would like to be great pianists. They would enjoy the applause, the fame and the praise. But the only person who will be a great pianist is the one who first pays the price, the price of devotion, study and hard work. After the price is paid they may be famous or they may not be, but in any case they pay before they get on.

In any calling of life the money, or study, or pains, or whatever it is, must first be paid before the emoluments come. If a man is to be a business success it means hard years of work before that is attained.

If a doctor wishes to succeed in his profession he must labor through years of preparation.

Perhaps this is the reason why the Master said, "If any man shall come after Me let him first take up his cross."

Even in the matter of eternal life you pay as you enter.

It would seem that you should be allowed to see the prize you have, to enjoy the goods you have bought first and ascertain whether they are of value or not before you pay for them. Such is not the case. You must pay for them first whether you enjoy them or not.

You pay for everything in this world and the cheapest things are those that you pay for in advance. All arrangements for deferred payments in time simply mean payment of a larger sum.

You must buy your ticket before you get on the train. You must get a little piece of pasteboard before you can see the show. You must pay a cover charge before you can sit down in the jazz palace and eat the food.

So in regard to spiritual things. A good many people do not believe in the Golden Rule, which is "Do unto others as you would that they should do unto you." They claim that it does not work out. The Golden Rule only works out with those people who do their part first. If you wait till the other fellow does his you will be still waiting. Many an individual, as well as all the nations of the earth, are waiting for the other fellow to do it first.

In the matter of international peace, therefore, as well as of individual benefit, we must pay as we enter.

LIGHT BILLS DURING WINTER MONTHS

By Garrett P. Serviss

Noted Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest.

"A FRIEND and myself have had an argument over last month's light bill, he claiming that it should have been no more than the bill from November 6 to December 6, and I holding the opposite view on account of the days being shorter during the period between December 6 and January 6. How can I prove it?

"W. R, Brooklyn."

THE gas or electric company might remind your friend that there is one more night between December 6 and January 6, and thus justify their increased bill without pressing the other argument, to which you have called attention. But the latter is by far the more interesting.

When a phenomenon of nature produces extra demands upon the pocket-book it is apt to receive a degree of attention that it would not get if it had to depend upon its attraction as a curiosity, studied by geographers, astronomers, and such wise uncommercial persons.

You are, of course, right about the greater length of the nights during the second than during the first period. Inasmuch as the earth chooses to sail around the sun, with its North Pole sticking over at a constant angle, like the mast of a water-logged bark, we have perforce to put up with the inconvenience of long nights and short days when the Pole leans away from the side where the sun is, and

"November chill blaws loud wi' angry sough;
The short'ning Winter day is near a close."

We have a very pretty little rule for calculating the relative length of day and night at different periods of the year and in different latitudes, but good almanacs generally save us the trouble. Since mathematics, however, is to many of us the very soul of poetry, I will just quote this short metrical gem:

Multiply the tangent of the sun's declination by the tangent of the observer's latitude, thus obtaining the sine of the ascensional difference, which you must immediately turn into hours and minutes.

It's a hundred times easier than it sounds, and if half as much attention were paid to these things in school as is paid to learning how to spell, the world would be practically much wiser.

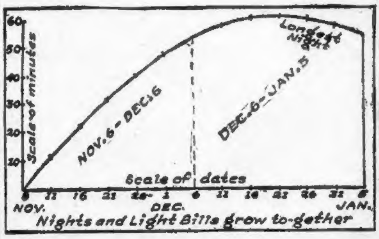
Now, for your proof. You will find that from November 6 (inclusive) to December 6 there were 426 hours and 23 minutes of night against 293 hours and 38 minutes of daylight. For simplicity night is counted from sundown to sunrise. Of course, if that period is increased the consumption of artificial light is proportionally increased.

So much for the first period. Now take the second. From December 6 (inclusive) to January 6 there were 455 hours, 53 minutes of night against 288 hours, 7 minutes of daylight. The total of the night hours in the second period is 29 hours, 31 minutes. But 14 hours, 38 minutes of this are due to the extra night, leaving 14 hours, 53 minutes as the total increase due to the lengthening nights. Thus we see that the increase in the bill was about equally divided between the extra night and the growth of night as compared with daylight.

You can roughly indicate this with a diagram, thus: The horizontal line is divided into lengths of five days, beginning November 6. The vertical line is divided into lengths of ten minutes.

On November 11, the length of night is 11 minutes more than on November 6. Put a dot in the diagram, above the date November 11 at a distance of 11 units of the scale of minutes. Find similar figures for the other dates, and dot them in their proper places.

Then draw a curve through all the dots, and you get that shown in the picture, which reveals at a glance the cause of the greater aggregate length of darkness in the second period than in the first.



Nights and Light Bills grow to-gether
